Acheson Attacks Laxity

NATO Must Speed Rearmament Plans Or Come-Up Short Secretary Warns

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(AP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson was reported tonight to have called on the North Atlantic Treaty organization (NATO) council in blunt words to get to the business of arming against aggression or run the risk of being too late.

An informed source said Acheson told a secret meeting of the 12-nation council "The time is running short."

The disclosure of the Acheson talk came as the council decided to have a night session in an effort to conclude its review of the world situation on its opening day here.

It will be in position then to begin discussion Monday morning on an eight-point agenda adopted this afternoon.

British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman also spoke at the afternoon closed session. Acheson gave the council a review of the American-British-French talks held in Washington.

US Seeks To Enlarge Pact

The council agreed to take up a U. S. proposal that Greece and Turkey be brought into the defense alliance to safeguard the Eastern Mediterranean against aggression.

A full debate and almost certainly a decision on this question was assured when the 12-nation body adopted an eight-point agenda at its first closed-door session this afternoon. It declined to make the agenda public immediately. A spokesman said it included only previously reported items.

The council President, Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, warned the council earlier that war may come before the Atlantic defense force is ready unless delays and deficiencies are eliminated quickly.

"We are still a long way off our objective," Van Zeeland declared as he opened the council's seventh session in the chamber of Canada's House of Commons.

Time A Vital Consideration

He told secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison, French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, Italian Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi and more than a score of other high ranking diplomats that the council must not only concentrate on removing current obstacles to full re-armament but must do so in time.

"We feel the critical moment approaching at which the scales of fate will turn irrevocably toward peace or war," he said. "That is why we continually turn an eye on the delays, on the deficiencies, and on the enormous task which remains to be accomplished."

Observers immediately linked his remarks with a statement he made at a news conference yesterday calling for a stop-gap plan to help hard-pressed European countries finance their huge armaments programs.

Money The Main Issue

It already has become clear that one of the major issues before the 12-nation council will be how to get the money to pay for the growing forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower without stripping their civilian economy.

Delegates arriving at the parliament building had to skirt around a Communist picket line, bearing anti-American slogans and urging Canada not to conscript soldiers for use in support of U. S. ventures.

Air Defense Center Installed At Tinker

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 15—(AP)—An air defense control center to direct counter attacks against any enemy air raids on the southwestern section of the country, has been established by the air force here adjoining Tinker Air Force Base.

Col. Victor H. Strahn, commander of the division here, said the center has been under construction secretly for several months. He said it is one of a dozen similar centers established at strategic points over the nation by the air defense command.

Strahn said the nerve center of the installation is the plotting room. Here the teamwork of the air force, army and civilian volunteers in the field are co-ordinated.

St. Joe Group Seeks To End Special Taxes

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 15—(AP)—Petitions calling for repeal of the 2-cent city cigaret tax, the 2-cent city gasoline tax, and for abolition of parking meters will be placed in circulation here Tuesday.

If 4,500 or more signatures are obtained, the council either will have to void those ordinances or call a special election on the proposals.

The Weather

Fair extreme north, elsewhere partly cloudy Sunday with occasional light rain extreme southeast in morning, cooler extreme southeast and not quite so cool west central, highs 65-70; Monday fair and warmer.

A Gloomy Picture Brightens

Mobilizer Wilson Overrates Scope Of Pinch On Civilians

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—When Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson said "the pinch is here" for civilians he might have qualified: It has hit industry but hasn't yet reached consumers—and it won't be so bad when it does.

Clothing, food and most other "soft" goods will be plentiful. But by the year-end home appliances may be shifting from surplus to shortage. Price-wise, now may be the time to buy them.

The munitions plants are reported today to be on the threshold of mass production. Thus far they've been in the stages of building, tooling-up, designing, and testing with a fair output of the easy-to-get weapons.

Tank, Plane Output To Double

By November or December, an Office of Defense Mobilization official forecast, the new-model tanks, planes and ordnance will be pouring out at double today's rate.

Civilian factories are steadily being throttled down. After this month they'll get only 58 per cent of pre-Korea steel, 54 per cent of copper and 46 per cent of aluminum. This applies to refrigerators, toasters, vacuum cleaners, and the whole range of metal-using household appliances.

Still, supplies of finished goods are huge in factory, wholesale and retail warehouses. Big and varied Christmas offerings should make a banner holiday buying season if—as sales indexes suggest—the public is stirring out of its cautious spending mood.

Austerity Not In Cards

"Austerity" as the British knew it, or even as we knew it during World War II, simply isn't in the cards.

An attempt to summarize the views of defense officials, industry leaders who deal with government, and congressional sources produces a picture like this:

1. Some shortages in consumer "hard goods," becoming noticeable in early 1952. An easing in tires and rubber goods.

2. Higher prices coinciding with the shortages—although this official view is disputed by some businessmen.

3. Wages following the cost of living up.

4. Clothing, textiles and shoes in good supply. Wool suits will be neither as scarce nor as costly as clothing clerks predicted last fall.

National Income To Rise

5. Probable record-breaking national output and national income, resulting in less pressure for further tax increases—because presently planned rates will yield more revenue.

6. Steeper rents. In the 75 days since July 1 a half-million landlords have asked increases under the new rent law. Four-fifths obtained them. The average increase varied by cities but in Detroit, for example, averaged $7.89 a month.

7. A shortage of 1,000,000 workers in the year ahead, to be met by bringing non-workers into the labor force. About 60 cities have a "tight" labor supply. In six or eight spots like San Diego and Wichita labor is a defense production problem.

8. Few lay-offs caused by civilian plant curtailment, although Detroit expects some. Unemployment still declines; last month it hit 1,578,000. Except for summer job-seekers, it was the lowest month since the war.

Air Show Ends In Tragedy

17 Die When Plane Crashes In Crowd At Flagler, Colo.

A late Associated Press dispatch stated the death toll from the Flagler, Colo. disaster had risen to 19. The injury list contained "at least 20 more" names.

FLAGLER, Colo., Sept. 15—(AP)—A stunting plane flipped into a crowd at an air show here this afternoon and 17 were dead—at least nine of them children—were counted and identified.

The Flagler hospital listed the 17 dead and reported that there were 15 injured here and others in hospitals of surrounding communities. The total of the injured was estimated to be at least 20.

Bob Rohder of the Flagler News said the plane hit at 2:40 p.m. (Mountain Standard Time) after faltering in a wingover close to the ground. It sheered into cars and spectators and disintegrated. Parts of the plane sheared through the screaming, closely-packed spectators.

Ambulances from Burlington, Colo., and Goodland, Kas., took the injured to the hospital here and to the Burlington hospital.

Crowd Numbered 1000

Officials estimated 1,000 persons were assembled for the air show in this town of 793 population. It is 176 miles east of Denver on U. S. 24.

One of the dead was the plane pilot identified as Lt. Norman L. Jones, stationed at Lowry Air Force Base at Denver. Another killed was a woman seated on the seat of an ambulance parked at the edge of the crowd—stationed here for emergency use in case of an accident.

Although Lt. Jones was an Army flier, the stunting plane was not an Army craft. It belonged to an Air Circus hired to stage the show at Flagler's air field, and Jones had been hired to fly the plane.

One of the witnesses of the crash was William Barker, Denver Post staff writer who had come to Flagler to cover the air show.

He said the single-engine plane swooped in over the field at a low altitude and did a wingover just above the crowd. Upside down, the plane fell earthward from an altitude of less than 100 feet, Barker said.

Plane Smashes Ambulance

The craft plowed through a phalanx of spectators and automobiles, then smashed into the parked ambulance.

The ambulance was knocked out of commission.

Shrieks of the injured and the screams of parents seeking their children added nightmarish touches to the scene of tragedy.

Farmers in pickup trucks helped to take injured persons to the Flagler hospital until ambulances could be summoned from nearby towns.

"The scene was one of utter chaos," Barker told his office. "Women were screaming the names of their children as their loved ones, their bodies smashed, were picked up. Several children were killed as they stood beside their parents."

Usual Loan Review Waived

RFC Official Admits Procedure Bypassed For St. Louis Firm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Senate investigators were told today that the Reconstruction Finance Corp. (RFC) waived its usual reviewing methods to grant a $465,000 loan to the American Lithofold Corp. in 1949.

Ernest B. Howard, veteran of 19 years with RFC and then chief of its business loans branch, supplied this testimony to a Senate investigation subcommittee.

The subcommittee is probing charges that Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle Jr., used his influence to get RFC funds for the St. Lous company, after its previous applications were turned down. He has denied any connection with the loans and is expected to testify before the committee later.

One RFC Employe Dismissed

Senator Mundt (R-SD) said the subcommittee has evidence "some people" got "gratuities far greater" in this case than those which brought quick dismissal yesterday to one RFC official. He said this would be developed in later sessions.

Oliver B. Kraft, assistant manager of the RFC's St. Louis branch, was fired within hours of his testimony that a Lithofold official paid his expenses of $262 on a five-day vacation. Kraft said the favor was repaid with a gift of ceramics, made by his wife, valued at $200-250.

Mundt told a reporter the gratuities he mentioned "represent something more tangible" than a free vacation trip. He would not specify whether money payments were involved, but indicated it was merchandise of some kind.

Other developments:

1. Chauncey Y. Dodds, now assistant to the deputy RFC administrator and an RFC official at the time of the loans, testified he did not even know Boyle. He said in his 18 years with the lending agency he had "no recollection of any contact at all by any members of the (Democratic National) committee."

Diary Supplies Data

2. A third key figure testified Friday that Boyle had arranged for Lithofold officials to meet Harley Hise, then RFC chairman, and three days later the company got its first loan. The witness was James E. Toole, former Lithofold treasurer and one time RFC official, whose black diary has supplied considerable information.

3. Toole's diary contained entries stating he had continued contacts with Howard after leaving the RFC for Lithofold and the two had discussed the loans. Howard contradicted part of these contentions, and said he had not given Toole information concerning Lithofold loans.

Howard, answering a question, said ordinary review procedures had been completely bypassed when Lithofold got its $465,000 loan in September, 1949. He said he had a "faint recollection" of a conversation reported by Toole—that Howard had told Toole the matter had been "handled upstairs" by RFC directors.

Special Man Handled Loan

Howard said the loan was handled by his branch. But it was assigned to a different examiner than usual and was not reviewed by the customary official, he said. The witness said at one point that he had been unable to find out why and at another point that he made no effort to determine why.

Desires Inquiry On "Aggie" Funds

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Senator Kem (R-Mo) said today he wants a congressional probe of money-handling programs in the Agriculture Department.

Kem said in a statement he would ask, in a resolution to be submitted Monday, that $150,000 be allotted for the investigation.

The purpose of the inquiry, he said, would be to find out whether officers and employes of the Agriculture Department have misused federal funds "or have personally profited by the manner in which such funds have been administered, or have engaged in other activities which may tend to discredit or lessen public confidence in the Department of Agriculture and the farm program."

"Corn and wheat do not mix well with graft and corruption," Kem added.

The mid-west Republican said his resolution was prompted by a speech in the Senate Thursday by Senator Williams (R-Del).

Williams charged that a Kansas City, Mo., firm received $382,201 in 20 months from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) for use of buildings at Camp Crowder, Mo. The buildings were leased by the company from the War Assets Administration for less than $1,000 a month, Williams said.

Officers of the Kansas City firm include a former western Missouri internal revenue collector and former state WPA director, Williams said.

The CCC handles purchases under the farm price support program for the Agriculture Department.

Kem said there also had been a disclosure that 22 past and present employes of the Farm Credit Administration (FCA) at St. Louis were involved in speculation in oil interests in lands in which the FCA was interested.

"These unsavory transactions require a full investigation by the Senate committee on agriculture," Kem said.

One Of Baltimore Quads Dies; Others Critical

BALTIMORE, Sept. 15—(AP)—Gloria, one of the four tiny quadruplets born yesterday, died tonight.

Doctors at City Hospital said the three others—two boys and a girl—are still on the critical list, but seem to be holding their own.

The quads were born within six minutes to a 31-year-old Negro mother, Mrs. Susie Avance. She already had five children. Her husband was killed in a stabbing two months ago.

Cloudburst, Flood Run Hundreds From Homes In Southern Texas

KINGSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 15—(AP)—A flooding creek at Kingsville and an 11-inch cloudburst at Weslaco forced hundreds from their water-filled homes today.

Tranquitas Creek at Kingsville, fed by two days of downpours, swirled into six to eight hundred homes—three to four deep in most, six feet deep in others.

The Weslaco deluge, backed up by clogged drainage ditches, spread out over 60 city blocks.

Kingsville, a town of 15,000 lies 44 miles southwest of Corpus Christi in south Texas. Weslaco, in the lower Rio Grande Valley, is 100 miles south of Kingsville.

Police Chief Jack West of Kingsville said flood damage already is "up in the millions." Police boats removed 200 families. Half of them are housed in Kleberg school.

West said water was flowing ten miles an hour and three feet deep through the sewage disposal plant, but so far the sewage system still was functioning.

11 Convicts Still Loose In Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 15—(AP)—Eleven convicts, including two convicted murderers serving life and one of Alabama's most notorious desperadoes, were still at large today following a mass break at Draper prison.

Hundreds of law enforcement officers pressed the manhunt into nearby states for the fugitives, believed to be heavily armed.

In all 19 prisoners got away last night from the prison at Spiegner, Ala., about 22 miles north of here, after the guard on the gate leading to the main cell block was knocked unconscious.

Eight convicts had been rounded up and returned to the prison by noon today.

Notorious Leo Self, 33-year-old escape artist with four previous breaks and a pair of attempts on his record, is among those being hunted. He was serving a 20-year robbery stretch.

The lifers who got away are Hoover Glass and Frank Green, both convicted or murder.

State Prison Director J. M. McCullough promptly fired two front tower guards, promising a crackdown on prisoners and a general tightening up in the guard system.

There might have been even more trouble had not the Draper warden walked into the corridor of the main cell block and ordered hundreds of prisoners who were milling about back into their cells.

The warden, Burr Reeves, was unarmed when he went inside to quiet them.

UN Troops Smear Wild Red Attacks On Central Front

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Sunday, Sept. 16—(AP)—Red regiments, filling the dark with the piercing sounds of bugles and whistles, lashed out last night and early today in East and Central Korea where the Allies have been on the attack.

Allied artillery, firing 5,000 rounds into the onrushing Communists, stopped the central Korea attack 50 yards short of barbed wire marking Allied positions.

"We clobbered them," an Allied officer said of the assault, attempted northwest of Kumhwa. "We pounded them into the ground."

That southeast anchor of the old iron triangle is about 20 miles north of parallel 38 in central Korea.

The action lasted an hour.

To the east, where three U. S. divisions, Turkish and Ethiopian units and a South Korean corps have been pushing the Allied line slowly northward, the Reds also reacted. The enemy struck back sharply early today.

Reds Hit Near Inje

AP correspondent Stan Carter said North Koreans, blowing whistles and bugles, opened an attack shortly after last midnight north of Inje. Inje is about five miles north of parallel 38 and 27 miles inland from the east coast.

Nearly a regiment, about 3,000 men, surged forward after the Reds had laid down heavy small arms and automatic weapons fire. Carter said the attacks persisted at intervals until 4 a. m. His dispatch reported no change of positions.

Allied artillery had scorched the Reds Saturday with the heaviest barrage of the bitter, six-week-old battle of the east Korean hills.

The 24-hour concentration of tremendous firepower was aimed at blasting the North Koreans from deep, stone and log bunkers. The Reds had battled Allied infantrymen to a standstill on some ridges.

Heaviest Barrage Since April

It was the heaviest artillery barrage by a single Allied infantry division since last April, when the U. S. Third division smashed Chinese hordes in the battle of the Imjin river, in western Korea.

The eastern front division was not named. However, previously identified on that front were the U. S. First Marine Division, Second and Seventh Infantry Divisions and the Republic of Korea (ROK) First Corps.

High explosives, white phosphorous and time-fused shells rained on Red positions on the ridges north of Yanggu, some 35 miles inland from the east coast.

Foe Digs In

Allied infantrymen had seized some hills in that sector, but couldn't budge the Reds from others. Weary of this, U. N. field commanders called for the intensive barrage before sending the infantry back up the slopes.

The spotty weather in the central and eastern sectors hampered Allied aerial activity.

United Nations warplanes flew 830 sorties in better weather Friday. Some of these were at night in close support of ground forces in the east. The fighters were guided by flare-dropping light planes.

11 Inmates Escape From Idaho Prison

CALDWELL, Idaho, Sept. 15—(AP)—Eleven federal prisoners escaped from the Canyon county jail tonight, setting off a manhunt throughout southwestern Idaho.

One of the escapees was captured a short time later.

The Canyon county sheriff's office said the eleven escaped through the top of their cells and left the jail through a ventilator.

They were en route from the Leavenworth, Kas., federal penitentiary to McNeil island federal prison in Washington. They had been held here two nights.

None of the prisoners was armed, according to the sheriff's office.

Vinson Plans Gala Yuletide For 2-Million Poor Children

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 15—(AP)—Uncle Dan Vinson, who played Santa Claus to more than a million children of convicts last year, is going to add two million underprivileged children to his Christmas list this year.

However, as in the past, few of the three million children will know their benefactor is a jolly asphalt salesman who spends most of his time during the year planning for their Yuletide happiness.

Uncle Dan—as he is known to all—wants to give toys to police departments throughout the country for distribution to the underprivileged.

The boys will go to the police without any strings, and Uncle Dan's only wish is that officers give them out as their personal gifts.

Why did Uncle Dan pick the police department?

"This summer while taking some underprivileged children to camp, I was startled to find that virtually all of them hated policemen, he explains.

Would Dispel Distrust

"Apparently those who have little just naturally take a disliking for the law. Then I was just as horrified to find that many officers have a natural distrust for kids from the wrong side of the tracks. I began checking around at various police departments and found that the chiefs felt if there were a way to bring both officers and children together, the natural distrust could be erased.

"Many police departments don't pay enough to allow their men to play Santa Claus to their own children, so they certainly can't help the underprivileged."

Vinson is asking every police department in the United States to contact him immediately so arrangements can be made for toys.

Truckers have promised Vinson they will deliver his toys free of charge if they are in their hands by Nov. 1.

Getting out an extra two million toys is nothing for Vinson, all material for toys is donated, as is labor. Even now, dozens of friends are contacting Vinson to learn when they can start work. He has enough material stockpiled to make more than 5,000,000 toys.

The toys aren't of the spectacular variety but there are 21 kinds to make any youngster happy, especially when nothing is expected.

Vinson, a big, bald-headed man who could play a perfect Santa Claus, started living the part several years ago when he decided to help those he thought were the loneliest on Christmas—children of convicts.

Last year, more than a million received toys. However, few knew the gifts came from Vinson because they were shipped to the convict fathers, who in turn re-addressed them.

Allies Await Red Decision On Armistice

TOKYO, Sunday, Sept. 16—(AP)—The Allies today pointed-up the possibility that the Korean truce talks, suspended more than three weeks ago by the Reds, may yet be resumed.

But the Reds kept right on broadcasting fresh charges of Allied violations of the Kaesong neutral zone.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters issued an information bulletin—these are labeled "unofficial"—which sought to analyze Red intentions.

Reds Want To 'Save Face'

The release said the Reds may be looking for a face-saving way to resume the talks and may find it in the recent Allied acknowledgment that a United Nations bomber mistakently strafed the Kaesong zone.

The release said:

"One possible outcome of this apparent confusion in Communist headquarters is that they may decide they can save enough face by accepting the apology and reopening negotiations. The one indication that they may have some intentions to act in such a way is the fact that they have not completely broken off negotiations in the past month, although from their point of view it would have been in simple matter."

Peiping Radio Stays Hot

The Peiping radio broadcast an allegation that since Sept. 12, date of an admitted mistaken Allied air strafing of Kaesong, "puppet South Korean troops have invaded this zone three times and fired into it once."

The broadcast, heard in Tokyo, was attributed to Allan Winnington, correspondent of the Communist London Daily Worker.

Brause Narrows Steamer's Lead In Saturday Lap

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—A 1913 Stanley Steamer and its gas-powered rival in a Chicago-to-New York race halted here tonight after an all-day trip through upstate New York.

Jack Brause, driver of the Steamer, maintained his lead over Rube De Launty and his 1911 Stoddard Dayton. However, at the end of today's 204-mile run from Avon in western New York, De Launty had shaved Brause's bulge to 52 minutes in elapsed time.

The friendly rivals are out to determine which is superior, gas or steam.

They plan to leave here tomorrow morning and swing south to Albany, about 32 miles distant. The racers hope to reach Poughkeepsie by nightfall and continue on to New York City Monday.

Gunmen End Life Of 'King' Helfer

CALUMET CITY, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—Arthur Helfer, 48, "cafe king" of Calumet City's honky-tonk row and target of kidnapers and assassins, was shot and killed from ambush today.

Gunmen hiding in bushes near his flood-lit garage cut him down with six bullets from at least two pistols when he stepped out of his sleek 1951 Cadillac at 2:28 a.m. (EST).

Helfer's sporty 2-carat diamond ring, which he lost but later recovered in his 1947 kidnaping, was reported gone again. Police, however, said they did not believe robbery was the motive. His wallet containing $39, was untouched.

Sgt. Walter Maciejewski, chief of Calumet City detectives, said Helfer was "not mixed up in the rackets and never involved in gambling."

"It must have been a grudge of long standing," he said.

A masked gunman shot at Helfer—but missed—last June.

One Memorial Day Favored

ABILENE, Tex.—(AP)—Growing interest in observing Memorial Day as a holiday instead of Armistice Day, November 11, and the victory days is shown by a survey of West Texas cities completed by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Sixty-six local chambers of commerce contributed to the survey. Twenty-eight reported their towns observe Memorial Day while only twenty "close up" on Armistice Day and none on VJ Day.

Welding Honor Won-By A Pleasant Green Boy

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15—(AP)—William Klenklen, Jr., Pleasant Hill, who attends Pilot Grove high school, was among six boys from Kansas and Missouri who were named winners in a national arc welding award program for agricultural high school students.

The James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation of Cleveland awarded $5,000 to high school students in 31 states in the 1950-51 program. In addition, $2,000 was given to high schools in which the first 10 winners were enrolled.

One hundred cash awards, ranging from a $600 top prize to $25, were made for the best descriptions of how arc welding was or could be used on a farm project.

The $600 first prize went to Stan Reifel, Ontario, Calif.

Woman Editor Of Blue Book Quits Her Job

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 15—(AP)—Mrs. Esther Downs Bishop disclosed last night she has quit as editor of the Missouri Blue Book, the state's official manual.

She charged that the specifications she wrote for the book had been changed so drastically they were "not worth the paper they were written on." She said Leo Clavin, state purchasing agent, cut out every clause that would have protected the department and the tax-paying public.

Under the circumstances, she said, she did not feel the manual could be kept at its present high standard.

Mrs. Bishop said she had told Secretary of State Walter Toberman about her fears but that he listened to Clavin instead of to her. The contract for printing the book has been awarded to the Smith-Grieves Co. of Kansas City on a bid of $34,250. The only other bidder was the Midstate Printing Co. of Jefferson City with a bid of $41,474. Midstate printed the last Blue Book.

The contract for the engraving in the 1951-52 edition went to Missouri Photo Engravers of Kansas City on a bid of $6,451. Mrs. Bishop said she had never heard of the engraving company.

She said one of the clauses cut out of the specifications would have required the bidders to show what plant equipment they own. Another would have required them to be responsible firms with adequate facilities to finish the big printing job.

56 Families Occupy Temporary KC Homes For Flood Victims

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Sept. 15—(AP)—The first group of temporary house-trailer homes for flood victims here were occupied today, although electrical connections were not completed.

Fifty-six displaced families struggled through mud to the old Homestead golf course. They were among the 86 families being housed in the Argentine high school.

Officials said all 86 families were notified last night to leave the high school, but only 56 showed up at the trailer city. He said the other 30 must have found accommodations elsewhere.

Families sheltered in two other schools will be moved Monday.

A total of 646 trailers are being prepared for refugees.

About 1,500 families have applied for housing in the trailers.

Electricians, delayed by rain today, were working tonight to complete connections to the occupied trailers. The Red Cross agreed to pay overtime labor costs.

School officials said they hoped to begin classes at Argentine high school Tuesday. Other schools opened last Monday.

Government Protects National Keystones From Natural Enemies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—The United States constitution and the Declaration of Independence are about to get protection at last from the "natural enemies" that slowly but surely have been destroying them.

On Monday, in a ceremony President Truman plans to attend, the precious parchment documents will be sealed in gas-filled glass-and-bronze cases designed to keep them in the present state of preservation for centuries.

This step comes a little late for the 175-year-old Declaration, which already is yellowed and faded. The Constitution, 164 years old, is in better physical shape—although insects (rug weevils) have been caught gnawing at its edges.

To protect the documents against bugs, moisture, harsh light and other hazards, while leaving them visible to visitors at the Library of Congress, has been an 11-year project for the National Bureau of Standards.

Government scientists called in experts from the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., and together they developed display cases patterned after the double-pane insulating windows used in thousands of American homes and office buildings.

The leak-proof cases—gold-plated to give them a jewel-like appearance—will be filled with helium, the lighter-than-air gas which is used to fill blimps. Relative humidity inside the cases will be held at 25 to 35 per cent.

Kitts Vanishes To Foil Efforts Of Police Force

OMAHA, Sept. 15 — (AP) — The search for escape artist Kenneth Kitts simmered down to routine checks and watchful waiting tonight.

The 34-year-old convict who gave the slip to a penitentiary guard yesterday appeared to have "vaporized," as Detective Inspector Alvin Clinchard put it.

Last substantial clues to his whereabouts were reports he was seen in a near-downtown residential area last night—a lead which Sheriff Richard Collins described as "unimpeachable."

But radio news broadcasts of the reports brought such an outpouring of curious men, women and children that police work was snarled. Collins estimated 5,000 persons mobbed the area. The surging, shouting crowd apparently cloaked whatever movements the fugitive may have made.

Kitts is the convicted burglar who escaped somewhat mysteriously from the county jail in Cedar Rapids, Iowa., last Jan. 22 and was captured by FBI agents in Omaha 17 days later. He has been charged with a string of midwest bank burglaries and only yesterday told of participating in a $100,000 strongarm jewelry robbery at Oklahoma City two years ago.

Lovett Likes Diversion Aside From Business

By Elton C. Fay

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—The doors of a neighborhood movie burst open and a flock of youngsters, with cap gun holsters and miniature western ten-gallon hats, surged out from the double feature western just ended.

In their midst was a tall, lean man with the look of Texas upon him. He also had a look of embarrassmen when friends, driving by, spotted him and waved and grinned.

They would have been surprised to see him there if they hadn't known that Robert A. Lovett, military leader, diplomat and banker, likes movies—any kind—whodunits, longhair drama, comedies, cultural.

He likes, too, informal gatherings with old business associates, capital colleagues, writers, artists. There he talk and listens to talk about the many things in his varied interests—sports, a new play on Broadway, music, pictures and, inevitably the serious problems of his work.

Bob Lovett has worked a many things since he was born at Huntsville, Tex., 56 years ago yesterday, which, by coincidence was his birthday and the day the Senate chose to confirm his nomination as Secretary of Defense.

Flier in World War I

He was a naval flier in World War I and the civilian head of the army air corps of World War II. The son of a judge, he studied law, but also business. When ready for a career, he picked business and went to work as a clerk in a banking firm. The years rolled by and he was a partner in another firm, held directorships in railways, trusts, insurance companies, cable companies. By the late 1930's Lovett had acquired the money and habits of a New York financier. He was a trustee of an art museum, a hospital, philanthropic organizations.

But 1940 and the years of national danger arrived. When Henry L. Stimson, the Secretary of War, asked him to come to Washington as assistant secretary for air, Lovett resigned his connections with the business world and came down for what they called "the duration." More than a decade later "the duration" is still running on for Lovett. He left the War department in 1945, and went back to his work but a year and a half later was again in the capital, the undersecretary of state.

When Gen. George C. Marshall was army chief of staff at the Pentagon during the war Lovett had frequent contact with him. But now the men worked together closely, the two top men of the American diplomatic department.

They resigned almost together and then came back almost together as the No. 1 and 2 military department chiefs. No one was surprised that when Marshall resigned as Defense secretary he advised President Truman to name his associate to the Pentagon post. It had become something of a dynasty.

Two decades in the business world and another in Washington has given Lovett a deft touch in handling thorny problems. He works without any air of tension, and the chores slide swiftly and smoothly over his desk. Unlike some Washington officials, he doesn't tote a bulging brief case of work home with him at night. His aides say that may be because he also works Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Although long in administrative and policy making positions of the government, he has had few if any troubles with Congress.

Lovett likes good, easy friendly chats and jokes but he doesn't like and doesn't tell long-winded anecdotes.

He swings through the Pentagon corridors and strides into the offices of his colleagues and aides with the easy pace fo a tall man. Talking at his desk, he tips back in his chair or leans forward with hands clasped. He doesn't doodle.

Conservative Attire

His dress is the conservative mode of the business man, with dark suits and ties of the somber shades favored.

When he was in the State Department, he and Mrs. Lovett did such formal, white-tie entertaining as was necessary in that diplomatic position. But now, they prefer to keep their social life simple.

In Washington, the Lovetts maintain a suite in a hotel overlooking Rock Creek park. Because their children, a son and daughter, have grown up they feel they no longer need teh big home on Long Island, so are building a smaller place.

Lovett was one of the first aviation enthusiasts. He learned to fly in 1916 and when the U. S. entered World War I he went to France in 1917 as a naval ensign pilot. There he established a naval flying school. Later in the war he was moved to England and piloted flying boats on the anti-submarine patrols and convoy work over the North Sea. From that assignment he was attached to the British naval air service, fliying night bombers from French bases against German U-boat bases and marshalling yards. Even during the 20 years of business life that followed his war service, Lovett kept a lively interest in aviation, helping finance American planes for competition in international air events.

When Lovett became assistant secretary of war for air he found himself working with one of the earliest and most vigorous evponents of air power, Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold. Lovett found that one of his most perplexing tasks was to keep Arnold's soaring enthusiasm from driving navy and army officials into roaring rages. It was almost as difficult as translating President Roosevelt's order for a 100,000 planes a year into the delivered products.

Dr. E. P. Puckett, dean of Central College in Fayette, has announced his intention of retiring at the end of the 1951-52 school year. The announcement was made the past week by Dean Puckett to a group of upper classmen of the college at a special assembly.

It is reported at the college the new dean to be named to succeed Dr. Puckett will be Dr. E. C. Buckner, head of the chemistry department of the school and who has served as assistant dean for several years.

U. S. Army Camps

Eighteen divisions of modern "minute men" stationed at points on four continents form the combat core of our new army.

These divisions, plus their attached and supplementary troops, now are ready for immediate action wherever they might be needed in the world. They also form a base for rapid expansion to total mobilization if it ever should become necessary.

Seven In Reserve

Standing in reserve readiness in continuous training within the United States are seven divisions. These units and their training stations are the 11th Airborne division, Fort Campbell, Ky; the 82nd Airborne division, Fort Bragg, N. C.; the First Armored division, Fort Hood, Tex.; the 28th Infantry division, Camp Atterbury, Ind.; the 43rd Infantry division, Camp Pickett, Va.; the 31st Infantry division, Fort Jackson, S. C.; and the 47th Infantry division, Camp Rucker, Ala.

Supplementing the 18-division army, to provide the strength of 24 combat divisions are several regimental combat teams, separate, smaller units, the Constabulary in Germany, and occupation commands in Austria and Trieste.

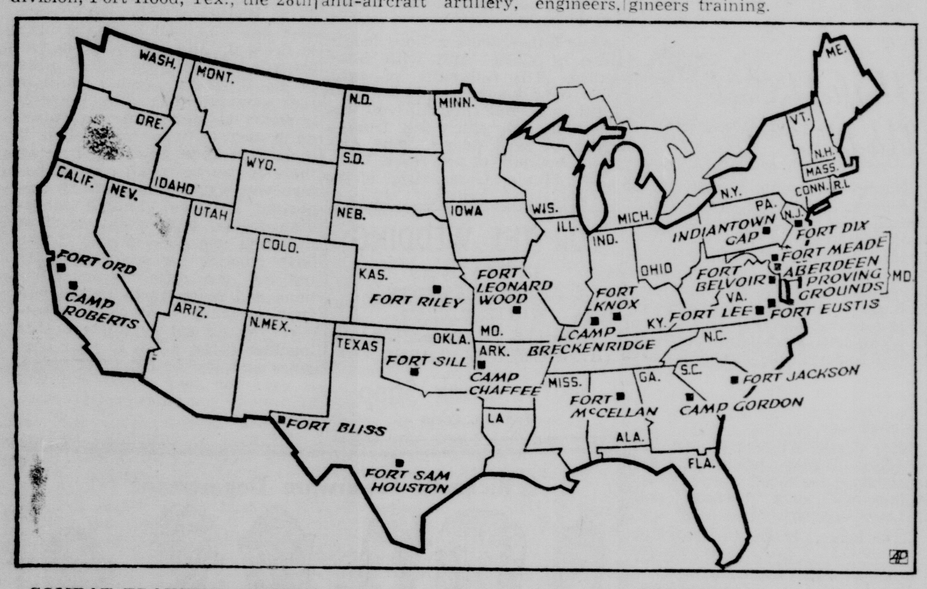

Famed Divisions Commemorated

While there were only four training centers in the U. S. when South Korea was invaded, today there are 20. Combat readiness is emphasized at each center.

Training divisions and training centers are in operation today for infantry, armor, field artillery, anti-aircraft artillery, engineers, medical, signal, military police, ordnance, quartermaster, chemical warfare, transportation and women's army corps.

All training divisions are assigned division numbers—in each case that of a World War II division with a famous combat history. The chief purpose in assigning these division numbers was to help develop an "esprit de corps" among new inductees in the army, by having them belong to established units with good military records.

This accounts for the difference between some of the division designations and the actual training received. For example, inductees training with the 6th Armored division at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., actually are receiving basic engineers training.

COMBAT TRAINING CENTERS for the U. S. Army are shown on the map above. At present, there are 10 centers which concentrate on combat training and 10 centers for technical training. The army, however, gives inductees assigned to technical training centers eight weeks of combat training to provide the maximum amount of available combat power. The training centers, the training inductees receive there and the specific training divisions are:

Red Cross Corner

A few weeks ago this column made a request for a translator. Many letters are received by the area office from Germany, and their reception here is delayed, sometimes for months, by the fact that they have to be translated into English. Mrs. Michael Wolfel read of this predicament, and has volunteered her services as our official translator. This means that the children of our schools will hear much sooner from those children in Europe who have written to tell them just what those Junior Red Cross gift boxes have meant to them. We feel this contact through the boxes and then the letters is important, and even vital. These children, as we have said before, are the citizens of the future. We hope that their teachers and parents will encourage correspondence with the boys and girls of occupied Germany. This is a serious side of Junior Red Cross, and one on which we feel too much emphasis cannot be laid. Everyone in Sedalia and Pettis county, whether they have children or not, ought to be cognizant of this project, and to realize that through this correspondence a solid foundation between our country and Europe might be laid. So to Mrs. Wolfel, our gratitude and appreciation for this unusual Red Cross service.

Mrs. F. I. Lawrence, R.N., one of our outstanding volunteers, and at present serving in the triple capacity of Home Nursing Instructor, nurse at the local A.R.C. Blood Bank and a "regular" at the Jefferson City Blood Bank, has returned from St. Louis, where she was a delegate at a Red Cross nursing conference. As representative for our chapter, we received recognition for the largest increase in nursing activities in the last year. She was presented a loving cup; and when taken into consideration the fact that no less than 93 chapters were represented at the conference, it will be granted that once again, the Pettis county chapter has received "the reward of a thing well done."

The new unit in Canteen Service has completed its class work and is ready for action. The sessions were held at the First Methodist church, under the direction of Miss Juanita Luthi of Johnson county. The purpose of this training is the instruction of the volunteers for assistance in the Blood Bank. There is one point here that we want to emphasize: If there are any women or girls who cannot take an active part in the Volunteer Services, but who might be able to act as baby sitters—we will have great need of them at the Blood Bank, in order that young mothers may volunteer. The next visit will be the 2nd and 3rd of November, Friday and Saturday, and there are many young donors who would like to donate a pint of blood to the armed forces, IF they had any way to have their babies taken care of, for the requisite period. So the chapter is herewith putting out a call for baby sitters. If you can be one, please call the office, 618 and volunteer now. And remember, the next Blood Bank will be held at the Armory, 9th and Ohio, November 2-3.

Farmers Leave East Texas

WINNSBORO, Tex.—(AP)—The farmers are moving out of this part of East Texas. O. J. Gipe says the number of active farmers in the Winnsboro area has dropped from 3,800 in 1940 to between 1,100 to 1,200. Gipe is head of the Hopkins - Rains - Wood and Sulphur-Cypress Soil Conservation Districts.

He blames economic pressure and the temptations of the big cities for the exodus.

"The day is gone," Gipe says, "when just anybody can make a living on a farm. Hit and miss farming today won't provide enough to feed and clothe a family, and keep them warm throughout the winter."

Iceland came under Norwegian rule in 1262, then came under Danish rule in 1380, and finally, became independent in 1918.

WHAT HAPPENS THE FIRST TIME YOU BUY STOCKS?
It's usually full of surprises, that first time in a broker's office.
Customers come in thinking that we're going to talk in millions of dollars, about blocks of thousands of stocks. Or they hesitate to ask questions because they think we'll charge them for our answers. We don't and we won't.
We're used to talking in much more modest terms. When a customer comes in with some hard-earned extra cash that he'd like to invest to earn 5 or 6 or 7 per cent, we know what he wants. And generally we know where to find it for him.
And we don't expect payment for information.
Maybe you have some extra cash that you want to put to work. Let us help you.
Write, T. H. Van Hoozer, vice-president and representative in this territory and he will be glad to call on you and give you any information concerning stocks and bonds.

Your Wardrobe
By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

THE BRISK FALL DAYS are here and you will have the urge to dress up and just walk downtown if you have no better place to go. What to wear? . . initiate that new fall suit. You know it is smart to wear a new garment on a sort of trial basis, then if there is a little adjusting here or there it can be taken care of before you wear it on a really important occasion. Simple gabardine dresses with a gay scarf at the neck are also smart. If you have gone in for sport separates try out the different combinations and enjoy them before you start wearing your coat. Whatever you do get complete outfits together early, down to your earrings and proper handkerchief. It is good for your moral and will help make you "that best-groomed woman."

Bookmakers' Ball Game

NEW YORK(AP)—A strange ball game attracted the attention of a Brooklyn patrolman. He saw one man tossing a rubber ball up to a second story window where a second man caught it in a net.

Watching revealed that the man on the sidewalk took several bets from passersby, stuffed the slips into a slit in the rubber ball and tossed it to the man with the net.

Both were arrested as bookmakers. Magistrate John F. X. Masterson observed: "This seems to disprove the district attorney's theory that bookies play ball among themselves."

Franchot Tone Gets Beating From Actor

Beating Over A Bride-Elect By Intended Groom

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15—(AP)—Franchot Tone, out on the town Thursday night with a bride-to-be, ran into the flying fists of the groom-to-be. He wound up in the hospital with a brain concussion and a smashed face.

The beating—and it was one of Hollywood's thumpingest in several seasons—was administered by actor Tom Neal, who was waiting for Tone when he came home with blonde Barbara Payton.

While Barbara screeched, 35-year-old Neal knocked Tone out so cold it took several hours to restore consciousness. The veteran actor, 46, was operated on later for multiple facial fractures, including a broken nose and left cheekbone.

His physician, Dr. Lee E. Siegel, said the surgery was performed from inside the actor's mouth to preserve the Tone profile.

"I'd hate to take the beating he took," Dr. Siegel commented. He said Tone will be in California hospital for two weeks. The surgery required two hours.

Tone obviously was in no condition to talk. Miss Payton apparently wasn't in the mood and could not be reached for comment.

So Neal had a clear field to tell the story his own way. It turned out to be a better than average bustup of a triangle that has had Hollywood buzzing for months.

"This thing has been brewing for a long time," Neal explained. "First, Barbara was going to marry Tone, then she was going to marry me. We had already taken our blood tests and were to have had the ceremony performed in San Francisco tomorrow afternoon."

"The first thing I knew of any change in plans was when Barbara went out yesterday afternoon with Tone. Last night she went out with him again, and they didn't get back until 1:15 a.m. I was waiting with friends.

"Swung a Haymaker"

"Tone ordered me out of the house. He then invited me out on the lawn. I told him 'I'm a younger man than you, and I don't want to get into a fight with you.'"

But, said Neal, Tone swung a haymaker. Neal, a "B" adventure picture performer, showed his traning by rolling with the punch. Then—

"I hit him very hard, knocking him about 10 feet," said Neal. "Then I hit him three or four more times. He went out cold."

At this point, according to Neal's version, Barbara came rushing at him and he pushed her so hard that she—well, stumbled and maybe fell. Without waiting to see Tone revived, Neal and company departed.

Besides his age advantage, Neal also boasted a weight bulge of 180 to 155 and probably an inch or so in the height department. He stands about five feet, 11 inches.

The younger actor admitted he didn't consider it a fair contest. Later, friends said, Neal left town.

Ordered Investigation

Police Chief William Parker of Los Angeles ordered an investigation of the brawl. He said the case had not been reported to officers and thus far no charges have been filed. The chief assigned three detectives to look into the matter.

Not even Tone's attorneys could get in to see him today. In fact, Dr. Siegel said it would be a day or two before anyone, including reporters, could see his patient. It might even be a little longer for photographers.

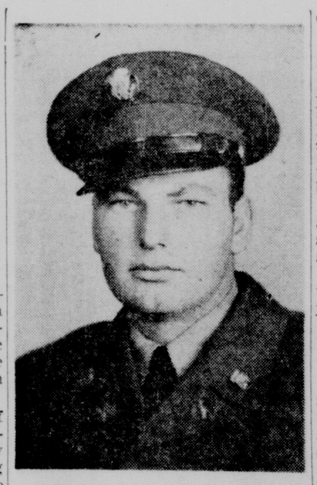

Tone's most recent picture, incidentally, is "Here Comes the Groom."

Earlier this week he was involved in a legal battle with his ex-wife Jean Wallace over custody of their two sons. At an earlier hearing this year, Tone testified he had seen the 23-year-old Miss Payton nude many times.

But until last night Neal apparently had taken over the favored spot in Miss Payton's heart. Her divorce from John Payton, an auto salesman, became final yesterday. She has a four-year-old son. She previously had been married to William Hodge, when both were students at Lubbock, Tex.

Neal has been twice married and divorced. His former wives are Gay Parkers, DuPont heiress, and actress Vicky Lane.

Oh, yes—take it from Neal—there won't be a third marriage just yet.

Fat or Skinny Everybody Keeps Warm

PORTLAND, Ore. —(AP)— The shape of your body does not interfere with your keeping warm and comfortable. Not that anyone ever doubted this, but the question bothered heating engineers because they could not prove it.

The proof was reported to the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers here by Professors F. W. Hutchinson, University of California, and Merl Baker, University of Kentucky. They made measurements of how a dummy—five feet eleven inches tall, weighing 165 pounds — absorbs heat and then calculated the other shapes.

Hooks A Husband

CRAB ORCHARD LAKE, Ill.—(AP)—Leroy Walker of Murphysboro, Ill., taught his wife casting and she made a 160 pound catch. 'Twas Leroy.

Twice in her first six casts Mrs. Walker took her husband's cap off. Her seventh hooked Walker in the neck. He pushed the hook through, exposed the barb and clipped it to pull it free.

Tigers Coast Past Marshall In Display Of Varsity Power

Friday night's game between the Smith-Cotton Tigers and the Marshall Owls saw only a glimpse of Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow's 1951 grid machine. The Tigers edged out an easy, but close 27-20 decision, but the first string saw action less than half of the contest.

Marshall collected only one of their ten first downs against Dow's ace charges and failed to complete any of three pass attempts.

Powerful Tiger Offensive

Meanwhile the locals' offensive power wilted the Marshall defense. Smith-Cotton received the opening kick-off and marched 52-yards in seven plays for the initial touchdown of the season.

Herb Ford received the Owl kick on the S-C 28-yard marker and returned the pigskin to the 48. Floyd Burton carried to the enemy 45 for eight years through guard; he carried for 12 more on the second play of the game to the Owl's 33. Dave Lingle then touted the ball 12 more paces to the 19. Two penalties and nine yards gained in three attempts set the stage for the climax of the drive, with Richard Lanning busting busting through tackle and evading three would-be tacklers for the score. Burton added the extra point by sweeping around left end.

Owls Fail To Threaten S-C

Marshall never threatened the locals therefater. Dow, going according to plans the majority of the contest, played under classmen and reserves.

Thirty-nine Smith-Cotton players rolled-up over 300 yards with their combined ground and aerial attack. Not once during the game did the Tigers shift to the single wing from the T.

Floyd Burton slipped through the middle of the Owl line late in the first period for the second counter. "Skip" Schulz intercepted Marshall's first aerial of the game on the Owl's 34 to set-up the tally. Bob England crossed the double marker for the extra point.

Marshall got their under-manned machine rolling against S-C reserves late in second half play and scored a TD in a drive that started on their own 30 yard line. Epperson ended the drive on a reverse to score through tackle and end. Earl Nold, Tiger line-backer busted through the line and blocked the conversion attempt.

The varsity returned to the line-up as second half play started for S-C. Marshall received the kick-off, and after one first down and seven plays, they were forced to punt.

Bill Arnold took the ball on the Tiger 18 and ran it back 12-yards to the 30. It took nine plays for S-C to romp the remaining 70 yards to pay dirt. Burton, Arnold and England carried the brunt of the attack and it was Burton who crossed the enemy goal, his second six-pointer of the game. His attempted conversion for the extra point was low.

Marshall received the kick-off and was forced to punt after failing to gain yardage in three plays. Smith-Cotton made the score 26-6 in three attempts after receiving the punt. Bob England carried a host of Owl tacklers for 11-yards before being dumped to the muddy turf and Burton went six more to the Marshall 31.

Lingle Romps Home

Dave Lingle rang the bell as he uncorked the longest TD run of the night of 31-yards and the marker. He bucked through the Marshall line and then galloped through the secondary in a spectacular broken field run. He added the point after touchdown by again plowing through center.

Dow returned the second-stringers to the field. After a series of exchanges at midfield and 20-yards in penalties against S-C, Marshall scored their second TD with Joe Danis plunging from the two. Kenneth Dudenhoeffer added the point after touchdown by knifing his way between tackle and end.

Marshall crossed the twin-marked one minute before the contest ended with Epperson again carrying. After two off-sides penalties, one against each team, Dudenhoeffer added the point with an end sweep.

Burton Thrills Crowd

On the final play of the game, Floyd Burton took the Marshall kick-off and returned it from his 18 to the Marshall 25 before being dumped to the gridiron by a shoestring tackle.

Line-backers Skip Schulz sparked the Bengals' defensive. Quickly spotting Owl hand-offs out of the tricky split T, he was in on the majority of the tackles.

Walks Enable Cards To Trip Boston, 10-1

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of 10 walks—five of them to Solly Hemus—plus Del Rice's two-run homer and Vern Benson's two-run double to hand the Boston Braves a 10 to 1 defeat today. Cliff Chambers went the route for the Redbirds, striking out seven men while giving up an equal number of hits.

Hemus' walking derby tied a league record held by several other players.

The Braves' Dave Cole set the trend when he walked the first three Redbirds to face him, then struck Enos Slaughter with a pitch to force in Hemus.

Boston tied the count in the second on singles by Sid Gordon, Walker Cooper and Roy Hartsfield, but a three-run St. Louis outburst in their part of the same frame put the Cards ahead to stay. Stan Musial singled home two runs that inning.

Del Rice's homer came in the third. Benson's blow was in the eighth.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

MISSOURI'S Sports Hall of Fame, at the State Fair grounds, is receiving a memento from Carl O. Hubbell to be placed in the present Hall of Fame case in the lobby of the Administration building. This is just the starter of what is anticipated to be one of the outstanding historic sport programs for Missouri. "King Carl" as he was known during his baseball playing career, has written a letter of appreciation to Carl McIntire, publicity director of the fair in which he stated he was sending the memento.

Hubbell is the first native Missourian to be honored by the Hall of Fame, being elected to this honor by nearly a hundred sports writers of this state. He was chosen from a nomination list of more than seventy-five native born sport figures.

Although he was unable to attend the presentation program, Hubbell was represented by Parke Carroll, general manager of the Kansas City Blues, who received the award from Ernie Mehl, sports editor of the Kansas City Star, who made the presentation in behalf of Missouri. Both Carroll and Mehl are close friends of the honored man.

The following letter was received from Hubbell by McIntire:

"Mr. Carl McIntire
"Publicity Director
"Missouri State Fair
"Sedalia, Missouri
Dear Mr. McIntire:

"To be the first athlete selected to the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame, at the State Fair in Sedalia, is an honor I deeply appreciate. Only those of use who grew up in the Missouri Valley know how many fine athletes the surrounding country has produced, and to be picked among them is a real distinction. As I understand it, one man is to be elected annually to the Hall of Fame, and in the years ahead I will surely find myself in distinguished company.

"The Hall of Fame expresses a wonderful idea and those who sponsored it are to be congratulated. It should be an inspiration to all the sports' minded youngsters in the State.

"It is a matter of sincere regret that my duties here with the New York Giants prevented me from attending the dedication ceremonies. I am writing to Mr. Ernest Mehl and to Mr. Parke Carroll to thank them for their contributions toward a wonderful day. Both are long time friends, and it pleases me greatly that they spoke in my behalf.

"Under separate cover I am forwarding an autographed picture, and also a memento of my pitching career with the Giants. I know many finer trophies will be presented to the Hall, but mine are meant to be an expression of a deep sense of gratitude.

"My personal thanks to you, also, My best good wishes to you, and to the Missouri Hall of Fame. At the first opportunity I will pay it a visit, to extend my thanks in person.

"Cordially,
"Carl O. Hubbell."

Already a discussion has arisen regarding the Hall of Fame. It is now only a cabine in the Administration Building, while many feel that in time to come a building should be built and dedicated to Missouri's Sports Great on the fair grounds.

(NOTE: The Hall of Fame cabinet has been appropriately decorated with a colorful background. A personally autographed picture of Hubbel is in it with a complete record taken from the Sporting News Record books; a picture of the presentation; a place for the memento of Hubbell; a card explaining the Hall of Fame).

BLEACHERS at Liberty Park, used for the Smith-Cotton football games, should not be treated as a concrete stadium. In fact the bleachers are really in not too good condition. They are safe enough to sit on, but boys and girls should take heed and not jump around, lean against the back rail, and still expect them to be any too safe.

Friday night a section of the back rail snapped off on the east end of the bleachers and seven or eight youngsters went toppling to the ground, at least four landed on top of one. All jumped up and ran, their names were not obtained but one of the lads, I was told was bruised up some.

Remember there's a chance Sedalia will get the new stadium, one which will take care of a crowd as large as attended the game Friday, but the bleachers there today aren't to be treated as something permanent.

There was a fair size crowd at the game, when the Tigers opened their season by defeating Marshall, 27-20, but from my view point several hundred more could have been on hand. The team needs moral as well as financial support.

WRESTLING in Sedalia is a question. The Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion is willing to sponsor such sporting entertainment, but they are making demands which I feel are warranted. The Legion wrestling committee, in discussing the Sedalia situation, feel they want the best of the business—the same as other local wrestling towns.

They are desiring to schedule matches in Sedalia regularly. They want a stated date to have the events and want to see the date will fit the plans of wrestling fans. They want to please wrestling fans in the talent.

One big problem and I doubt very much if it can ever be accomplished and that is a referee that will satisfy all fans. If that could be accomplished it would be the first time such an accomplishment was ever made in sports in the whole world. However, they are trying to get one of the best to come to Sedalia and handle the matches—and the committee hopes the public will bear with them.

No approach has been made to the Legion as yet for promotion of matches in Sedalia for the coming season. Maybe its because of the strict plans the committee is demanding, but whoever it is they will have to come through better than in the past years or so, otherwise there'll be no wrestling matches staged here.

Certainly the Legion has lived up to their portion of requests of promoters by purchasing and having built one of the finest rings in Missouri. This was acknowledged by wrestlers who have appeared in it. They have come through with other requests, now they have turned the tide and are making some rather stiff—but good ones themselves.

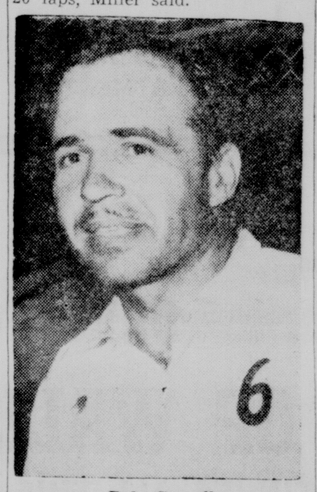

Burton Blues Softball Team End Season

The Burton Blues girl softball team has completed a good season with a record of 17 victories against 5 losses. The team also went to the finals in the Clinton Girls Softball tournament, but came out second, being defeated by the Clinton aggregation entered in the meet. The team originally was sponsored by donations from several business firms but two years ago Bert Goldman took over the responsibility of financing the team and has been its sponsor since, under the name of his store, Burton's. Holding the beautiful second place trophy of the Clinton tournament are Dorothy Stockstill, catcher on the left and Earlene Walz, pitcher, right. Midget Classic Slated Tonight In Kansas City

Kansas City, Sept. 15 (Special)—Opening of the Mid-Western classics, top event for the midget auto racers during the season, will be held this Sunday night at Olympic stadium, Promoter Dutch Miller announced. The main event, a 50-lap affair, delayed twice because of rains, will climax a nine-event program. The semi-classic event is slated to run 20 laps, Miller said.

Bob Carroll

Time trials will begin at six o'clock and the first race will be held at seven p.m.

Johnny Sawyer, young Sapulpa, Okla., will defend his 50-lap crown in the Casey No. 77 Offenhauser, a new mount for the champion.

Pick A Sooner As Coach Of The Year

EAST LANSING, Mich., Sept. 15—(AP)—Jack Baer, 36-year-old coach who guided the University of Oklahoma baseball team to the national collegiate championship last spring, has been named the first annual "college baseball coach of the year."

The announcement came today from John H. Kobs, Michigan State baseball coach and secretary-treasurer of the American association of College Baseball Coaches, following a poll of some 200 members of the AACBC.

Baer will be honored at the annual meeting of the association in Cincinnati, Ohio, in January.

Baer, a native of Shawnee, is a University of Oklahoma graduate and former baseball star. He played professional baseball with Little Rock of the Southern association and Hartford of the Eastern league immediately before World War II.

After a term of military service, Baer took over as Sooner coach in 1946 and immediately guided his team to a conference title. He repeated in 1947 and again in 1951.

Hunters Urged To Use Caution And Follow Commandments

With another fall hunting season just a few weeks away, the Missouri Conservation Commission urges hunters to use caution and courtesy in the woods and fields. It will pay to observe the ten commandments of safe hunting:

1. Before hunting, check the gun to be sure it is free of obstructions in the bore, such as mud, old gun-rags, spiders, etc.

2. Secure permission to hunt before trespassing. Remember, trespassing is not only illegal but will spoil your hunting and perhaps that of sportsmen to follow.

3. Never load gun until actually on the hunting territory and don't point a gun at anything you don't intend to shoot.

4. Know where members of your party are at all times.

5. Don't hunt in areas near people, livestock or poultry.

6. Empty gun before climbing fences or other obstructions or before setting it down.

7. Never shoot at a flat, hard surface or at water . . . remember, a bullet skips better than a rock . . . and kills.

8. Leave part of the game for another day.

9. Gunpowder, like gasoline, does not mix with alcohol.

10. Observe the State and Federal regulations.

These ten rules are easy to follow . . . easy to forget. If you follow them, you're in for some safe and enjoyable hunting in our great outdoors.

Smithton Community Program Concluded

"Old Age" proved victor over the "Youth" in a closing session of the Smithton Community Softball program last week. The "Old Timers" were considered "old" at the ripe age of 25. The score was not provided for publicity purposes by the committee which turned in the article to the newspaper.

The Community program has been completed for the season but there is expected to be some activity at the park. The Old Timers baseball game scheduled for September 23 has been postponed, but it is the hope of those interested it can be played early in October.

High school softball teams plan several night games at the park before the weather becomes too cold to play outside.

The program was under the direction of Paul Selken and Sheldon Smith who handled the schedules and publicity and the board of directors were Floyd Schleusing, president, George Griffin, vice-president, Cecil Smith, treasurer, and Max Birdsong, Ralph Lewis, L. W. Hoehns, Louis Demand, George Demand, Gail Oerke, and John Wagenknecht.

Wentworth Starts 62nd Grid Season This Coming Week

LEXINGTON, Mo., Sept. 15—(AP)—(Special)—A collection taken up among cadets to buy a ball back in 1892 brought about the beginning of football at Wentworth Military academy, according to sports records here.

A week or so later, a Lexington newspaper scribe wrote that "there are a great many sore shins and ankles." Two or three weeks later it amounted to a rage and even the teachers were kicking the ball around.

For two or three years it was an intramural affair. The first interscholastic game was scheduled with Marmaduke Military academy of Sweet Springs in 1892 on "a sandbar" near the Missouri river, sometime euphemistically referred to as Riverside park.

Wentworth won the toss and took the ball. On the first two plays it was dropped and recovered by Marmaduke. The opponents piled up a 48-0 win.

The Marmaduke player wore suits of padded duck but Wentworth cadets played in their undershirts and common trousers. Wentworth's coach acted as umpire and Marmaduke's mentor was referee.

In the early days at the academy, football coaches worked for their money. They not only coached but they also played on the team. Capt. T. B. Perry appears tohave been the last coach who played on a Wentworth team in 1901.

Wentworth is starting its 62nd year of grid activities this coming week.

Youngest Victor Since Bobby Jones

Texas Collegian Takes Crown In National Amateur Tourney

By Will Grimsley

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 15—(AP)—Billy Maxwell, poker-faced, 22-year-old college boy from Odessa, Tex. chopped down giant-killer Joe Gagiardo with a rentless streak of par golf today and became the youngest player since the gerat Bobby Jones to win the United States amateur championship.

Wins By 4 and 3

The stocky, imperturbable redhead, deadly with his irons, defeated the 39-year-old Mamaroneck, N. Y. barrister and father of five children, 4 and 3, in their 36-hole finals over the water-soaked Saucon Valley course.

Jones was the same age—22—when he won the first of his five amateur titles at Merion in 1924, but the youngest man to capture this championship was Robert Gardner, who did it at 19 in 1909.

Today's battle of "unknowns", which was expected to produce mediocre golf, turned instead into a terrific battle of birdie, with spectacular shots repeatedly bringing gasps from the crowd of more than 5,000.

First Texan To Win Crown

When Maxwell, the first Texan to take the crown, closed out the mild-mannered lawyer on the 33rd hole, he was even par for the day over the 6,979-yard, par 71 layout, which played long and heavy from yesterday's torrential rain.

Through 149 holes of match play covering seven matches, the tight-lipped Texan was only eight strokes over par, by far the best individual showing of the tournament.

Gagliardi played the finals loaded with medicine to alleviate the pain of a stabbing tooth-ache. He had three abscesses in his mouth lanced Thursday and another cut open last night.

Severe Pain For Loser

His doctor said the pain was so severe the Westchester county attorney hadn't eaten a square meal in three days and got little sleep last night. He was given sedatives. He gulped down aspirins before teeing off this morning.

However, Gagliardi's tooth-ache apparently had little to do with the outcome of the match since Maxwell played almost unbeatable golf.

AA Batting Title Won By Bob Cerv Of Kansas City

CHICAGO, Sept. 15—(AP)—Bob Cerv, Kansas City Blues' outfielder who had a brief try with the New York Yankees this season, won the 1951 American Association batting title with a .344 percentage.

Final official statistics credited Cerv with 146 hits in 425 trips for a three-point edge over Toledo's Russ Sullivan, who had 137 blows in 302 ab's for .341.

George Crowe of Milwaukee, the association's most valuable player this season, finished third with .339, followed by Taft Wright of Louisville with .335; and Ray Dandridge of Minneapolis with .324.

Last years champion with .323 was outfielder Bob Addis of Milwaukee, now with the Boston Braves.

Cerv also won the three-bagger championship with 21, but yielded the home run title to Tookie Gilbert of Minneapolis, who belted three in the final four days to finish with 29.

Crowe triumphed in four specialized departments—hits, 189; total bases, 316; two-baggers 41; and runs-batted-in, 119.

Jim Pendleton of St. Paul scored the most runs, 116, while Rudy Rufer of Minneapolis had the most stolen bases, 54.

The league pitching crown went to Ernie Johnson of pennant-winning Milwaukee with 15-4 record for a .789 percentage.

Sedalians To Canada To Fish And Hunt

Five Sedalia business men left Tuesday for a fishing and hunting trip to Vancouver British Columbia and to Courtney B.C. They will fish for salmon and while there will have an opportunity to hunt deer and elk. The party took off from the Sedalia Air Force base, south of Knob Noster in a plane piloted by McMasters of Springfield and owned by the Ozark Wholesale Beverage Co., also of Springfield. The party are guests of Lincoln J. Knauer, president of the company, whose hobby is seeing his various customers are taken on a vacation trip sometime during each year. The Sedalians and others in the party are shown in the picture from left to right: Pilot McMasters, L. A. Spencer, Terry Apartments, Lovell Farris, 32nd and Lamine, Leroy James, 1316 East Broadway, Al Miles, 643 East 5th, Frank Brosch, 608 West 2nd, and Jim Stafford of Urbana, Mo. They are expected back at the SAFB sometime the middle of the coming week. (Padgett Photo)

Giles May Be Next Commissioner

By Charles Chamberlain

CHICAGO, Sept. 15—(AP)—Warren Giles, president of the Cincinnati Reds, is rumored ahead in the race for sport's biggest job, that of baseball commissioner.

A successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who was voted out of office last winter in an explosive setting, is expected to be named at a meeting of major league club owners in Chicago Thursday.

They also will consider boosting the yearly salary of their choice from $50,000 to as high as $75,000.

Only Four Ramain In Race

The owners are said to have trimmed an original list of a dozen candidates to at least four, all in baseball's hierarchy or with a baseball background. However, there may be four additional names on the list that could be regarded in the darkhorse bracket.

A recent opinion from a high baseball office which must remain anonymous places veteran baseball man Giles, a member of the major's fourman executive committee, as the No. 1 candidate.

If the white-haired distinguished Giles is chosen it may not be by unanimous vote. He is believed, however, to have better backing than the bare necessary majority of 12-4.

The final ballotting margin is not expected to be announced at the meeting.

The so-called top of the list to be presented Thursday is said to include, in addition to the Reds' executive, Ford Frick, president of the National league; and George Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues. There also is Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio, who announced tonight that he was withdrawn from the race.

Baseball Man To Get Job

P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, and Lou Perini, president of the Boston Braves—both members of the commissioner's screening committee—have publicly eclared that the man selected will be to all intents and purposes a baseball man.

Wrigley said flatly that he would back a baseball man and that he believed other owner's sentiment was generally the same.

Despite this apparent emphasis, other names have been bantered about from the start. They are James A. Farley, chairman of the board of Coca-Cola export and always a staunch supporter and admirer of the sport; and Milton Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State college.

Two others who are reported to be under consideration within the last month are Stuart Symington, former secretary of defense and now chief of the RFC, and Benjamin H. Reese, who retired this year as managing editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Saigh Supports Symington

One reliable report said that Symington is known to have the unlimited support of owner Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals. Saigh, along with Del Webb of the New York Yankees, was instrumental in the overthrow of Chandler.

The need for a commissioner has grown within the last two weeks and the new czar probably will have little time for a second breath before being called upon for action.

It is no secret that ill feeling spread to some league quarters when the Boston Braves sold high-salaried pitcher Johnny Sain to the New York Yankees to bolster their pennant drive in the final weeks.

It was the third straight year the Yankees picked up pennant insurance from the National league in late August or September. They acquired Johnny Mize in 1949 and Johnny Hopp in 1950.

The deals, of course, were strictly legal. But the fact that there were some loud squawks may prove the rules need study and possibly revision.

Grim Warning Sounded As To A New War

New Weapons of Destructive Power As Never Before

By Don Whitehead

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—(AP)—Reports of America's "fantastic new weapons" post a grim warning to the Communist nations that another war means death and destruction on a scale never known before.

For centuries, men have searched for new secret weapons with which to destroy an enemy—and now it appears the scientists are overshooting even this goal.

President Truman said recently the weapons under construction could destroy civilization.

"No one can imagine the destruction, the loss of life," he said. "New weapons mean that an all-out war would wipe out civilization. x x x It is terrible to think of what would happen if we should have another war."

Then Senator Young (R-ND), a member of the Senate Appropriations committee handling military funds, told reporters: "They are new and terrible weapons of war that are just beyond imagination." He said they were not atomic but "something even more startling than germ warfare."

A few days later Senator O'Mahoney reported this country is acquiring "fantastic instruments by which man now conquers the atmosphere itself."

Fury Be Intensified

And then Chairman McMahon (D-Conn) of the Senate-House atomic energy committee, said "the destructive fury of America's atomic weapons is truly fantastic . . . a frightful threat" that dwarfs anything man has ever known.

The air force gave the first disclosure of the type of weapons in this awesome arsenal by announcing the formation of a guided missile squadron. Its weapons will be push-button-controlled jet bombers—with no pilots needed to guide them to their target.

This bomber is a guided missile and apparently a refinement of the German V-One which pounded London so mercilessly in World War II. But the Nazi "V" weapons could not be guided once it was on its way.

President Truman told a news conference Thursday the air force's jet-powered missile is one of the "fantastic weapons" he had mentioned. But he left no doubt there are others being built or already developed.

Some highly placed military men have voiced the guarded opinion this arsenal might include new developments in germ and chemical warfare—weapons which would not likely be used unless an enemy used them first.

Today's grim race for new weapons isn't new. Ever since David felled Goliath with a sling shot and a pebbue—and before—men have searched for new methods of destroying an enemy.

Genghis Khan, the Tartar Barbarian, found his surprise weapon in the gunpowder that had first been invented by the Chinese some 1200 years after the birth of Christ.

The Chinese had used gunpowder as a novelty and plaything. But Genghis Khan turned it into a weapon of war.

A hundred years later a German monk first used gunpowder to propel a missile—and that was the beginning of modern artillery and firearms.

The Civil war might have ended in a victory for the north months before it did if the federal government had accepted the invention of an inventor named Richard Gatling.

Earlier Terrible Weapons

Gatling got the idea he could invent a rapid-fire gun and the Civil war was only two years old when he turned out a weapon that could fire 350 rounds a minute.

But the war was just about ended before the government agreed to the use of this gun. The Gatling gun was the forerunner of the modern machinegun and a "fantastic" new weapon of its time.

Another "terrible weapon" came along in World War I when the Germans turned their submarine packs loose in the Atlantic to prey on allied shipping. The submarine almost won the war for Germany, too, before the allies found ways to defeat the menace.

Another "incredible" weapon was the gun—"Big Bertha"—which the Germans invented. It had a range of 76 miles and was used to fire on Paris at long range. But it never became more than a nuisance weapon.

World War II brought the first development of the modern weapons which probably are among these mentioned by Mr. Truman.

Some military men believe the Germans might have won the war had they been a little faster with their development of the V-One (the buzz bomb) and the V-Two (the radio controlled rocket).

These two weapons were putting a crushing weight of death and destruction on London when the allied troops in Europe over-ran the launching sites on the channel coast and ended the nightmare.

But the top one of them all was the aomic bomb discovery. It's hardly likely that any of the new weapons are more destructive or fantastic unless scientists have found the key to a hydrogen bomb.

The search for new weapons has come a long way since David loaded his sling-shot—so far that man one day be scared into world peace.

Miracle Drugs Save Life Of Baby Stung 477 Times By Wasps

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 15—(AP)—A baby boy, stung 477 times when he fell into a wasp nest, has made what doctors described as a "miracle recovery."

Mark Bennett, 17 months old, toddled into a wasp's nest in his backyard and remained there virtually paralyzed for 10 minutes.

His body was swollen to about twice normal size, his eyes were bulging and his hearing was gone. He lost 50 per cent of his blood.

The baby was in a coma 48 hours and all hope seemed gone.

He was treated with acth, penicillin and various anti-histimines and today was pronounced "completely recovered."

Expanded Use Of Natural Gas

Alarm To Texans Over Shipments North and East

(Editor's Note: The following report on the disputed question of the expanding export of Texas natural gas was written for the Associated Press by Jay Hall, oil editor of the Dallas Morning News.)

By Jay Hall

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 15—(AP)—A good many Texans are worked up over the expanding national use of the state's natural gas.

Politicians have made out-of-state gas sales a hot issue before two recent Texas legislatures, and there is enough fire brewing to promise a renewed fight at the next session in Austin.

The ordinary garden-variety citizen has warmed somewhat to the issue, but so far his feeling seems to be a vague uneasiness that those "northerners" are getting a break at his expense.

The politicians tell him that anyway. Their opposition to gas exports is founded mainly on self-interest—for the people of Texas, of course.

Alarmed at the increased shipments of gas to the industrial North and East, triple now to what it was in 1945, some of them profess to see the day when Texans will return to burning coal and wood in their homes.

Gas export opponents ask a simple question: Why ship our gas to the industrial and heavy-populated eastern areas where coal for fuel is in over-abundance? And they add: Why not keep our gas here and invite industries to take advantage of our cheap, smokeless fuel?

There are those who dispute this last. Fuel, they say, is only a small factor in locating an industrial plant. But no one denies it is a factor, and the spreading industrial growth in Texas is evidence enough that gas as a fuel and as a raw material for the manufacture of many chemicals is important.

Since gas moves in interstate commerce there is not much state legislation can do to stop it. The only thing that can be done is to make future exports a little tougher. For instance, the Texas railroad commission, which is the state oil and gas agency, could oppose permits for transmission lines as they come before the Federal Power commission for authorization.

In the field of taxation the legislature is a little more at home. Politicians just dont like to see all that gas moving out of the state without revenue attached. Since a direct tax on interstate gas would "burden" interstate commerce, the legislature hasn't yet figured out a clear approach and still leave home-consumed gas free of the take. But they haven't given up trying to find an angle.

Gas export opponents appear to be adding some substantial support as the issue moves ahead. Chambers of commerce in several Texas cities, including Dallas, have passed resolutions against the mounting gas movement.

William Dwayn Billings, son of Mrs. Clara Billings, 1202 East 15th, left Pearl Harbor September 8 for Japan. He enlisted in the U. S. Navy January 4, 1951 and received his boot training at Great Lakes, Ill., after which he went to San Francisco., Calif., and from there to Pearl Harbor.

Newspapers have joined in with editorials. Within the state's oil and gas industry there is support—of a kind.

Independent elements have spoken out against exports and the transmission companies. But their opposition seems to stem mostly from a dislike of buying practices and prices of the gas shippers. Opposition here might fade if the points are won.

On the other side of the picture, however, there is much factual support for continued export of Texas gas but still more expansion.

H. J. Struth, Dallas petroleum economist, backs up this position in the July issue of the Petroleum Newsletter. Said Struth:

"Prophecies of a gas famine in Texas, predicated upon the growing volume of exports, are decidedly premature in the light of official facts.

"Continued expansion of markets for Texas natural gas is not only feasible in the light of future reserves, but cannot fail to contribute richly to the economic welfare of the state."

Not mentioned by Struth but one big reason why a lot more Texas gas is not going to market is the overriding fear many of the big oil companies have for the federal government. They are afraid if they get into the interstate gas market they may be classed as a public utility. As a consequence they are keeping their reserves bottled underground.

Little Profit Made In Deal At Crowder

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 15—(AP)—The Camp Crowder, Mo., Grain Storage deal objected to by a U. S. Senator was not as lucrative as it appears, Dan M. Nee, an officer of the storage company, said.

Senator Williams (R-Del) said yesterday that the Mid - West Storage and Realty Co., Inc., of Kansas City, leased some buildings at the camp for $1,000 a month, then collected $382,201 in rent from the Commodity Credit Corporation for storing grain over a 20-month period.

Nee, former collector of internal revenue, is associated with Quirk J. Bernard of Lexington, Mo., in a motor car agency at Lexington, Mo. Bernard was a regional director of the old War Assets Administration which granted the Camp Crowder lease.

Dead Man Rigged Affair

Both Nee and Bernard said today the storage deal was handled through another WAA man, the late Edwin Turney, and that Bernard had nothing to do with it.

Nee said the rental paid by Mid-West was on the same scale paid by another storage firm, and the Mid-West's storage rates charged against CCC were standard throughout the nation.

Profits were cut, Nee said, by such expenses as insurance on the grain, disinfecting and hauling the grain from rail cars to the warehouses.

"You know what it costs to get an operator and a truck," he added.

The company's peak employment on the hauling and warehousing job was about 75 persons.

Also, Nee said, Mid-West had to maintain the buildings, several floors collapsed under the weight of the grain, and walls had to be shored up.

Citizens Rights Abused

"It's getting to the point," Nee said, "that a citizen can't negotiate a contract with his government without being subject to the criticism of someone in Congress. The profit is nothing like anyone would expect to make."

He did not say how much profit Mid-West made on the storage deal. Nee was one of five stockholders in the company.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Yankees Lose Vital Contest To Tigers, 7-4

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers tossed a monkey wrench into New York's pennant drive today, smashing four home runs to defeat the Yankees 7 to 4.

The defeat dropped the Yankees 1½ games back of the front-running Cleveland Indians who won the opener of a twin bill from the Senators in Washington.

Vic Wertz caused the Yanks the most grief. The slugging Tiger right fielder drove home four runs on a pair of homers. Former Yank Dick Kryhoski and starting pitcher Marlin Stuart also homered for the Tigers.

Johnny Sain was the victim of the vicious tight bombardment. Sain worked the first six innings and yielded six runs. The loss was Sain's first in three decisions since his arrival from the Boston Braves.

Stuart, beaten five straight times, was relieved by Dizzy Trout in the fifth after the Yanks had threatened to get back into the game. The Yanks scored a run on four walks with two out before Trout came in and stamped out the rally by getting Yogi Berra to ground out with the bases loaded. Berra won yesterday's game with a grand slam homer.

Trout, dean of the Tiger pitching staff, checked the Yanks on two hits the rest of the way and gained credit for his ninth victory.

The Yanks and Indians meet head on at the Staduim tomorrow in the opener of a two game series. Bobby Feller (22-7) will pitch for the Indians against Allie Reynolds (14-8).

Browns Check Red Sox Drive For Pennant, 3-2

BOSTON, Sept. 15 — (AP) — The last-place St. Louis Browns checked the Boston Red Sox pennant drive today by pulling out a 3-2 victory for righthander Duane Pillette. Rookie Bob Nieman, who celebrated his major league debut yesterday with two consecutive homers, singled in the Brownies' winning run.

The Browns combined three of their six hits with two bases on balls to score all of their runs at southpaw Chuck Stobbs' expense in the eighth inning.

Pillette, lifted for a pinch-hitter during the Brownies' winning surge, was in serious trouble only in the third frame. After the bases became loaded on singles by Don Dimaggio and Johnny Pesky and a pass to Ted Williams, Billy Goodman doubled off the left field fence to drive in both Boston runs.

Satchel Paige replaced Pillette and fanned Goodman and Walt Dropo while giving up but one hit, a single to Fred Hatfield, over the last two frames.

They are Miss Bobbie Sullivan, Miss Anita Parks, Miss Anita Self, Miss Carlene Wilkens, Miss Betty Jane Bradley, Miss Stella Sperber, Miss Anna Lee Harvey and Miss Loretta Burton.

The program will be different this year. The girls will not be required to wear formals on the stage of the Fox theater where the final judging of the Sedalia contest will be held. They may wear any dress-up type dress that they may have and thus are given an opportunity to show their style in clothes to better advantage.

The first judging will be by individual interviews with the judges at Bothwell hotel after which they will be guests at a dinner.

Girls between the ages of 18 and 24 are eligible for the contest and may enter by calling Bob Wall or the Chamber of Commerce.

The winner will receive gifts and a trip to Kansas City where they will be a candidate for Queen of the Amercian Royal in October.

Article On Sally Rand At Fair

An article about Sally Rand at the Missouri State Fair in Sedalia appeared in the September 26 issue of the magazine, "People Today" with several pictures of the famous fan dancer.

The story tells of the criticism of 35 irate wives and mothers of the state who sent indignant letters to Gov. Forrest Smith. The governor, the story continues, told People Today: "The show I saw was neither immoral, lewd or obscene," as a matter of fact the governor found the show well presented.

The magazine also shows Sally and her adopted son, Sean Orion Rand, a husky lad with dark curly hair and blue eyes, who shares a $10,000 trailer with Sally and Bing, a prize boxer, along the carnival and fair route.

Actress Defies Doctor's Order To Visit Tone

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15—(AP)—Shapely Barbara Payton climbed a fire escape and pushed her way into Franchot Tone's hospital room today in defiance of orders from the actor's physician.

The blonde for whom Tone took a severe beating from muscular Tom Neal spent two hours in the room. For part of the time Tone's special nurse allowed her to visit him alone.

Accompanied by a friend, Jerry Dialac, Miss Payton also left Tone's second-floor room at California hospital via the fire escape.

Meanwhile, detectives and reporters fumed in the corridor. They were abiding by the edict of Dr. Lee E. Siegel that Tone wasn't ready for visitors yet.

The first version giving Tone's side of the Friday morning fracas came late today from one of his attorneys, Kenneth N. Chantry. He also got in to see the actor briefly.

"We went outside to discuss our problems," Chantry quoted Tone as saying. "When my face was turned, Neal jumped me. I can remember putting up my hands to defend myself."

Neal contends that Tone invited him outside and swung the first blow.

Arriving home from the hospital, Miss Payton told reporters who asked if she had also seen Neal today:

"No, I haven't and I don't intend to."

Then she stamped into the house and left Dialac to announce that "Miss Payton plans to issue a statement tomorrow—she has had orders from her studio not to talk."

Lloyd Johnson, Slater, who figured in an accident with a car driven by Herman Payne, 216 West Pettis, was fined $25.00. Johnson was granted a stay on the fine by Judge Trotter. The accident occurred at Ohio and Fourth, Friday night.

Big Seven Briefs

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 15—(AP)—Two top Missouri varsity football teams battled to a tight 13-12 score in the rain today and coach Don Faurot said he was pelased by the workout.

It was probably the gridmen's toughest action before they face Fordham in their opening game here next Saturday.

A bright spot was the quarterbacking of Walter Trueblood, a junior from Kansas City, who piloted the winning gold team.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Sept. 15—(AP)—A red-jerseyed team struggled in the mud to a 25-6 victory over the Blues today in an Kansas game scrimmage.

In spite of the slippery field, Galen Fiss, 205-pound fullback, rumbled 35 yards for one Red touchdown. Jerry Bogue passed 10 yards to Orban Tice for another, and Charlie Hoag and Jerry Robertson got the others on short drives.

CURTIS, Neb., Sept. 15—(AP)—Bobby Reynolds, All-America halfback for the University of Nebraska, suffered a shoulder separation in a scrimmage at the Cornhusker football camp today.

Coach Bill Glassford said Reynolds would be out for four to six weeks.

Nebraska opens its football season against Texas Christian at Lincoln Sept. 29.

Reynolds, rated All-America as as sophmore last year, was the nation's leading scorer.

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 15—(AP)—The Oklahoma Sooners lineup glittered today with promising freshmen as they went all-out in a 2 ½ hour scrimmage in an effort to make the football varsity.

The Whites—Coach Bud Wilkinson's first offensive eleven—trounced the Reds 40-13, but there were spectacular performances from both sides.

Next week Wilkinson will cut the 100-plus member squad about in half and begin preparing for the home opener against William and Mary Sept. 29.

AMES, Ia., Sept. 15—(AP)—Stan Cozzi and Emory Eichron, both halfbacks sparked a five touchdown parade during a long, heavy scrimmage at Iowa State college today.

Eichorn scored twice, one on a short run and again on a pass, Cozzi, who apparently showed little effects of a bruised leg, ripped off a 65-yard touchdown run.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Sept. 15—(AP)—A pair of freshmen were promoted to the Kansas State No. 1 offensive team in a rugged scrimmage today.

Casimir Kolinski and Clair Simpson were the yearlings who replaced the injured lettermen guards, Al Lummio and Jack Lorenz.

Four freshmen were on the defensive team. They were Tom Ebert and Joe Norman, ends; Wesley Rager, tackle, and Dewey Wade, guard.

Coach Bill Meek said he may have to use some of the freshmen in the first game here next Saturday against Cincinnati if the injured veterans don't recover.

Can Missouri Commission Levy TV Tax?

Athletic Commission Wants 5-Percent On TV Fight Pictures

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 15—(AP)—Can the Missouri State Athletic Commission collect 5 per cent of the theater boxoffice receipts at a showing of a live telivision prize fight?

That question was laid before the commission by Col. Charles P. Orchard of St. Louis, commission chairman, at a meeting here today.

The commission decided to ask Attorney General J. E. Taylor for the answer.

Collect On Sport Events

Under state law the commission can collect the tax at boxing and wrestling matches in Missouri.

Orchard cited Wednesday's fight between Sugar Ray Robinson and Randy Turpin which was telivised only for selected theaters in the country. The new Shenandoah theater at St. Louis drew 1,400 patrons at $2.40 each for the fight, Orchard said.

"If there had been a prize fight in St. Louis that night, the TV show would have killed it," he added. "I am anticipating the time when such a TV showing will draw, not 1,400, but 14,00 patrons."

Fine Cecil Hudson $100

The commission also:

Fined Cecil Hudson $100 "for an unsatisfactory performance" in a fight with Rocky Graziano in Knasas City July 10.

Perfected an accident insurance policy plan for all professional and amateur boxers in Missouri.

Required all fight promoters in Missouri to file and keep up-to-date a list of boxers under their control.

Ruled that any fighter suffering a knockout must wait six weeks before fighting again in Missouri; wait six months after a second knockout; wait one year after a third knockout and also be examined by three commission physicians before regaining his state license following the third knockout.

Require Bonds of Promoters

Required that, where there are two or more promoters in a Missouri city, the promoters post a $1,000 bond to guarantee that a date for a fight show is fulfilled. If no satisfactory reason is given the commission for failure to stage a show, the bond can be forfeited.

The motion to fine Hudson was made by Commissioner P. G. Wightman of Bethany and was supported by Orchard. Commissioner Randall Jessee of Kansas City dissented.

Jessee had recommended a $500 fine and a life suspension for Hudson immediately after the fight, in which Hudson was counted out in the third round. Referee Benny Kessler of St. Louis reported to the commission that Hudson was not hit hard enough to be knocked out.

Meetings More Frequent

In a meeting at St. Louis Aug. 11, Orchard suggested Jessee's proposal for punishment be softened. Jessee was not at that meeting, however, so the matter was postponed until today.

The commission decided that future meetings shall be more frequent, and the sites shall follow this rotation: St. Joseph, Kansas City, St. Louis and Jefferson City. The next meeting will be in Kansas City Oct. 13.

Besides the chairman and commissioners, those present today included Thomas E. Walsh of Kansas City, secretary, and Bert Cooper of Jefferson City, director of the state department of business and administration, under which the athletic commission operates.

Kentucky Trounces Tennessee Tech 72-13

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 15—(AP)—Kentucky employed the deadly passing of Vito (Babe) Parilli and the down-the-middel bursts of Bill Leskovar to grind out a 72-13 football victory over Tennessee Tech here today.

Warming up for bigger things to come—starting with Texas next week—Kentucky used the season opener mainly to give its sophomores and freshmen experience.

The 26,000 fans, baking in sunny, 76 - degree weather, saw the unveiling of loping Harold Gruner, a Louisville sophomore halfback; Max Mason, a yearling halfback from Rockmart, Ga., and Bob Hardy, a yearling quarterback from Paducah, Ky.

The Kentucky Babe fired a total of 16 times and hit on 11 of his throws, to account for 175 yards. He heaved for two touchdowns.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Uncle Sam, an expert at rolling out the red carpet for royal visitors in recent years, is getting set now to welcome Princess Elizabeth of Great Britain and her husband.

Their trip in October will bring to more than a score the number of regal travelers who have journeyed to the United States in the last 30 years.

Coming to America for many reasons and under varied circumstances, the royal guests since their visits have experienced many strange twists of fate. Not surprising, perhaps, in view of the trends of the time, is that much of their subsequent luck has been bad.

One royal visitor who captivated the imagination of millions of Americans was Queen Marie of Romania, who came in 1926 with two of her children and a Paris wardrobe packed in 50 trunks. She was feted at the White House and New York city hall. She lunched with bankers, visited oil companies and made a much-publicized cross-country tour.

Ostensibly her trip was made to dedicate a museum of fine arts near Seattle, Wash. It also was credited with having been a factor in bringing American investments in Romania up to more than $25 million by 1930.

Return in Glory

Th Queen returned to Romania in a blaze of fame, a figure of political power. Within a few years, her star was in eclipse. Her husband King Ferdinand died. Her son, Carol, who had renounced the throne, seized power. Queen Marie went into virtual retirement and died at 63. In World War II Carol fled the country when the Nazis took control. His son, King Mihai, who succeeded him, fled in turn when the Communists took over.

War clouds were gathering over Europe in June, 1939, when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Britain came to the United States. It was another brilliant visit, replete with glittering parties and parades. President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained them at brilliant functions in the White House and at a hot dog picnic at Hyde Park.

World War II brought drastic changes in Britain. The people voted in a Labor government. Property worth billions of pounds had been destroyed. Much of the country's substance had to be used to replace it, and the people were called on for sharp sacrifices.

India, Pakistan and Ceylon became completely self-governing in the commonwealth framework. Burma left the Commonwealth completely, South Ireland severed all links with the crown and became the Republic of Ireland.

Last fall this country had a visitor from the Middle East — Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, Shah of Iran. He flew to the United States in President Trumans plane, was entertained at the White House and had a big Broadway parade, complete with showers of ticker tape and shouts of "Hiyah, Shah!" from crowds of bobby-soxers. Since he returned home he has lost power with his own parliament, which entered a controversy with Britain over oil and alienated countries which the Shah hoped to make his friends.

Albert I, soldier king of the Belgians, got a rousing welcome when he visited the United States at President Wilson's invitation in 1919, with Queen Elizabeth and Crown Prince Leopold. Official receptions were given for the monarch, hailed as a hero for leading his country's fight against German invasion in World War I.

In World War II, Albert's son, Leopold, surrendered to the Germans. This aroused bitter opposition to him in his own country and his return to the throne after years of exile, set off serious trouble.

Leopold finally abdicated in favor of his son, Baudouin.

Former Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands and her daughter, Queen Juliana, who succeeded her, were both visitors to the United States in World War II, when Wilhelmina was a monarch in exile and Juliana was Crown Princess. Both were entertained by President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Queen Wilhelmina addressed a joint session of Congress — the first sovereign ruler to do so.

The Netherlands had a rich colonial empire in the Dutch East nIdies, which it had ruled for sevral hundred years. As World War II drew to a close, the islands began to fight for independence. Queen Juliana signed the bill, which brought the United States of Indonesia into being.

Visits From Duke

The Duke of Windsor visited this country twice as Prince of Wales, when he was the British empire's No. 1 traveling salesman, and received a tumultuous welcome. Since his renunciation of the throne and his marriage, he and his duchess have made their home here much of the time.

Former Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary and her children spent considerable time here during World War II. Two grandsons of Queen Marie—King Miahai of Romania and King Peter of Yugoslavia—were other royal visitors. Both their countries now are controlled by Communists.

After King Peter visited the White House, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt said (in her memoirs published in McCall's in 1949) the President commented: "That young man should forget he is a king and go to work. In the long run he would be better off." Recently a New York publicity firm announced Peter had taken a job with it as consultant of public relations.

Not all the royal visitors or their countries met with difficulty. King Gustaf VI of Sweden and his consort visited this country twice when he was Crown Prince. The first time in 1926, they dined with President and Mrs. Coolidge, and toured much of the country. In 1938, their visit coincided with the New Sweden Tercentenary in Wilmington Del. Gustaf has succeeded his father as ruler of a country that weathered the post-war years without serious mishap.

Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands reigned a beloved monarch until she abdicated voluntarily in favor of her daughter. King George VI of Britain and his family are among the most popular members of British royalty in the history of the country.

Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip can look forward to the future. Since the first Elizabeth ascended the thone, the British traditional regard the reigns of queens as periods of national prosperity and prestige.

Australia Rolls Out Carpet For Italian Migrants

SYDNEY—(AP)—Since World War II ended, about 500,000 migrants have been packed into Australia. More than 25,000 of them are Italians.

The Italians are proving good "New Australians"—as the "Old" Australians call the newcomers. Australia and Italy last December agreed on an immigration scheme under which the two governments will assist about 15,000 Italians to migrate to Australia each year for the next five years.

Sir John Storey, Australian industralist and chairman of the Commonwealth Immigration Planning Council, recently reported on his return from a European tour: "There is in Italy a rich goldmine available to Australia of hard-working and capable people, with abilities covering a range of activities, which Australia needs in large numbers."

Atomic Radiation Lights Old Camp Fires to Trace Prehistoric Man

TUCKED AWAY in the pile of material under the dials are the remains of old Indian campfires, which still give off enough radiation for University of Michigan archeologists to determine how long ago the Indians lighted them.

NEA Special Correspondent

ANN ARBOR, Mich—(NEA)—Michigan's amateur archaeologists, hot on the trail of ancient man, will have the advantage of an atomic radiation process in their attempts to prove that prehistoric man was here 10,000 to 15,000 years ago.

The amateurs, organized recently as the Michigan State Archaeological Society, are busy cataloging known Indian village sites, burial grounds and mounds throughout the state for future diggings. Many of these sites have been explored before — but not in the light of "Carbon 13."

Carbon 13 is an isotope or variant of common, everyday carbon —the stuff you have left when your summer campfire simmers down. The Indians, of course, scattered thousands of campfires over this and other states.

In the course of centuries, the common carbon's chemical structure changed and became Carbon 13, which, scientists have learned, disintegrates at a calcuable rate over a period of 25,000 years until nothing is left.

* * *

This Summer, members of the Michigan State Archaeological Society are exploring the high-cut banks along rivers and creeks, seeking out signs of campfires which glowed centuries ago.

To them, a "lens" of carbon, indicating one of these campfires, is a far more exciting find than a cache of speerheads of the moulding bones of some ancient chief.

The University of Michigan's anthropological division is new using the Carbon 13 technique to calculate dates of prehistoric finds. Dr. Emerson F. Greenman, head of the Great Lakes department of this division, is secretary of the new archaeological group, so the work of the amateurs won't go unnoticed.

Hottest find of the season had been the accidental discovery of two Indian skeletons at Elsie, Mich., approximately half-way between Saginaw and Lansing.

* * *

A group of youngsters, spading around in a gravel pit area, unearthed the remains. The pit's owner called sheriff's department officers, and the officers referred the matter to the Michigan State Police. The last-named wisely turned it over to the professional archeologists, after amateur archaeologists scented a real discovery.

The find is "hot" because the Indian burials were on a gravel ridge overlooking what geologists know as "Lake Saginaw." Lake Huron, during the retreat of the last ice-age around 15,000 years ago, was as far inland as Elsie—a good 50 miles farther west than now.

If the remains of campfires can be found here, or of other vegetable matter, Greenman thinks it's entirely possible that America's most ancient man will have been discovered, thanks to the Carbon 13 process.

Woodling is Scalping Indians

CLEVELAND, — Some days Al Lopez, manager of the Indians, must be sorry that Gene Woodling figured in the deal that sent Lopez to the Indians on Dec. 7, 1946. Lopez now manages the Indians and Woodling, as a Yankee, seems to be wrecking their chances for a pennant.

Here's what Woodling has done against the Indians:

June 23 — Yanks win 7-6 and Woodling's homer off Bob Lemon helped win the game.

June 24 — Yanks win 5-3. With the score tied at 3-all in the eighth Woodling homered with a mate aboard to beat Early Wynn.

July 12 —Yanks win 1-0. Woodling's homer in seventh beat Bob Feller to give Allie Reynolds his no-hit victory.

July 24—Yanks win 3-2. Woodling's homer off Wynn in sixth gave the Yankees their first two runs, enabling them to tie the score.

The latter homer was his seventh of the season — four of them against Cleveland.

Rubber For Subs

AKRON, O.—(AP)—Ten per cent of the total weight of a United States Navy submarine is rubber.

Perhaps the largest amount is used in the vessel's 252 hard rubber storage batteries, a rubber company (B. F. Goodrich) estimates. The bulkheads and decks of each of the two battery rooms which house the huge cells are completely covered with rubber for protection against aicds.

Rubber also can be found in the gaskets that make hatch covers and compartment dors watertight, in flood and vent valves on ballast an dtrim tanks, in shock mountings for heavy machinery and other equipment, and in electric cables, water and oil hose.

U. S. Taxpayers Rooked By China Lobby

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON—The more you look into the operations of the China lobby, the more it is certain that the American taxpayers' money, voted to help Chiang Kai-shek, was actually siphoned into the pockets of Chinese grafters and American middlemen.

Some of these middlemen were suspiciously close to certain senators who consistently urged that more money be voted for Chiang Kai-shek.

Thus its possible that debate on the floor of the United States Senate, one of the few free legislative bodies in the world, may have been influenced by dollars, not conviction. This may be why only a few brave voices such as Senators Morse of Oregon and McMahon of Connecticut have spoken out for a probe of the China lobby.

One exception to this is Senator Knowland, Republican of California, who, though vigorously pro-Chiang, stopped some of these deals when he smelled graft or unfair profits.

For instance, here are the facts behind one deal that Knowland stopped—the attempted purchase of 5,300,000 gallons of aviation gasoline for the Chinese air force by an American company which at first didnt exist, and which later was organized by partners already in bankruptcy.

Fantastic Story

Here are the chronological events in this important case:

On May 2, 1950, the Hau Tai Trading Co., Tipeh, China, bid on supplying the Chinese air force with 5,300,000 gallons of gas, "product of the United Petroleum Company, Los Angeles," for $1,637,700. The bid was sent to the Chinese in Washington and was followed by a definite order from the Chinese chief of staff, Gen. C. J. Chou, who instructed the Chinese air force procurement office in Washington to go ahead with the deal.

However, Col. W. H. Hsiang in Washington got suspicious. Hsiang is the same colonel who later got kicked out, following his efforts to clean up Chinese graft. Colonel Hsiang knew, as reported in this column on August 16, that his chief of staff in Formosa, General Chou, had been in on a deal which siphoned $444,706 of the American taxpayers money into a mysterious account under the name of "Lee Sun Company" in the National City Bank. So Colonel Hsiang sent an investigator, Maj. L. S. Wen, to Los Angeles to look into the United Petroleum Co.

Major Wen found that the United Petroleum Co. did not exist.

Colonel Hsiang also cabled the chief of staff, Ceneral Chou, that the company did not exist, then repeated the cable. He got no answer.

The answer finally walked in the door of Colonel Hsiang's office in Washington on June 5, 1950, in the perso of Edward A. Martin, who claimed to represent the United Petroleum Co. Martin happens to be on friendly terms with a senator who has done great favors for the China lobby.

Quickie Company

It later developed that the Chinese chief of staff in Formosa had ordered $1,637,000 worth of gasoline from a company which at that time did not exist, and which obviously was formed merely to handle this special transaction.

The gasoline could have been purchased from any number of well-known and established companies, or it could have been purchased through the friendly help of the U.S. government. But it was not.

Suspicious, Colonel Hsiang asked Martin a series of questions and had him sign the answers.

Among other things, Mrtin stated that the United Petroleum Co. had an office at 420 Madison Ave., New York, not in Los Angeles, as previously stated; that its president was Lyon McCandless (also a friend of a pro-Chiang senator); and that its representative in China was H. E. Renfro, Peninsula hotel, Hong Kong.

Still suspicious, the Chinese procurement office then asked its American lawyers for a report on United Petroleum, and found it was a partnership between Lyon McCandless and his wife, together with E. P. McQueen. Also, the partnership had been formed only on June 1 — almost one month after the gasoline had been bid on and ordered from Formosa.

No Bank Account

Furthermore, the Dun and Bradstreet report on United Petroleum stated: "We have not been able up to this time to locate any bank account in the name of the company."

Further investigation showed that the same partnership had also organized five other companies which were either in bankruptcy or inactive.

One of them was the Amer-Ind, Inc., organibed for trade with India, which, on December 5, 1947, petitioned for receivership under Chapter XI of the amended Bankrupty Act, and now operates as a debtor.

The same partnership also oprated Amer-Ind France, Inc., a firm supposed to do business with France, but now inactive. It also organized Amer-Ind International, likewise now inactive; and Amer-Ind, Inc., of Deleware, for Latin-American trade, also inactive.

Dun and Bradstreet reported back to the Chinese procurement office that when they interviewed Lyon McCandless on June 8, shortly after the huge aviation gasoline order had been placed with this seven-day-old firm, he stated that "the firm was organized for the specific purpose of acting as agents in the sale of petroleum products to the Far East. The income will be derived from commissions."

Kenneth H. Parkinson, attorney for the Chinese procurement office, also interviewed Attorney Martin and reported that "the price which he quotes per gallon F.A.S. port of shipment, is approximately 1½ cents higher per gallon than the price obtained from Richfield Oil Company under your recent contract."

In view of all these factors, Colonel Hsiang took the matter up with Senator Knowland and the deal fell through. As a reward for making this and other investigations, Colonel Hsiang and his superior in New York, Gen. P. T. Mow, have now been fired.

"Oh, no!" cried Holly Dunston, horrified. "They can't lynch Steve Tracey!"

Nothing could have kept her from following Elsa Porter then. She would have gone down to the village alone after that. It had been bad enough when she thought Steve would have to face trial for espionage and plotting against the government, for at least she had hoped for justice, but this was nightmarish. The comic opera atmosphere of the arrest of Steve had vanished, and the comedy had turned into a stark tragedy.

She didn't know what she could do. No plans were forming in her mind as she ran down the red clay street with Elsa. A group of women caught up with them, linked arms with them and pulled them along, singing, laughing and shouting.

The red glare grew brighter, the shouts grew louder and the gunfire more frequent, as they came closer to the village.

"It isn't a fire!" Elsa shouted over the din. "It's a red flare!"

The square was packed with shoving, surging men and women working toward the center of it. There a pole had been set up and brush set around it. As they pushed toward it Holly saw a man touch a match to the brush and caught the outline of a figure tied to the pole.

Elsa screamed. "It's Steve—"

"No, no!" cried Holly. "It isn't Steve, it's an effigy." They worked around the other side of it, and got a closer view of the effigy which the flames were already attacking. There was no mistaking it for the rotund form and ornate clothing of Senor Hernandez!

* * *

THE people gathered closer and and shouted and sang and threw things at the burning effigy. One of them caught Holly and danced her around madly, shouting something of which the only word she understood was "Americano!"

"I don't understand—" said Elsa dazedly. "Look—Holly, they're—they're bringing Steve out of the jail!"

The door of the police station had been opened and the mob had gone through to the jail. They were bringing Steve out, carrying him on their shoulders, while he struggled and fought with them to no avail.

"There's Ray!" screamed Elsa, as she saw her husband. She caught him as he hurried past, and he pulled away impatiently. "Ray—don't let them kill him—"

He checked his mad flight. "They're not going to kill him," he said, hastily. "But I've got to get to him. Come along if you want to, but make it fast!"

They followed hard on his coat tails as he opened up the crowd for them.

The mob had set Steve on a platform beside the flaming bonfire in which the effigy had collapsed in a heap of odoriferous, burning straw. They were all shouting at Steve and gesticulating, and Steve stood there, white and tense and bewildered.

"They want a speech from him," Ray Porter laughed, "and the poor lug doesn't know more than one word of Spanish and that's 'adios!' "

"A speech?" Elsa gasped. "Ray—what—"

But Ray had swung himself up beside Steve on the platform, and was talking and swinging his arms. The crowd quieted, then they shouted. A band had arrived by that time and its music added to the general confusion.

Finally, Steve and Ray swung from the platform, and joined Elsa and Holly. The two men opened up a passage for them through the crowd which shouted at them as they passed.

"Well!" gasped Elsa as they began to climb the red clay road to the plantation house. "Will someone tell me what all this is about?"

"Tell me too," begged Steve. "I've just as confused as you folks. First I was in the hoosegow, spy and arch enemy of the republic and generally in the doghouse. Then I'm being taken out in the cold gray dawn to be burned at the stake, and here I am walking up the mountain side with the sunrise and the birds singing. Will you explain in English words of one syllable what the heck happened?"

Ray laughed. "It couldn't happen anywhere but here! Diego Vegas and his men were actually plotting the things you were arrested for, and Jose Montera and Hernandez knew it. That's why they were so excited about your article. But now the revolution has come and Steve's a hero because he struck the first blow in the uprising by socking Jose, the chief of police."

* * *

RAY PORTER explained the rest of it after they reached the plantation house.

"I'll make us some coffee," Elsa said, "and then get breakfast started. After all the excitement I'm starved!"

"Whew!" Ray shut the door behind him and mopped his brow. "I'm glad that's over! You aged me 10 years, feller!"

"You aged! I aged 20," said Steve.

"And I don't have to marry Jose!" said Holly in such a surprised tone of voice that everyone laughed.

"If there's any marrying to be done by you around here it'll be with me," said Steve.

He advanced upon Holly, and she grew crimson and retreated, remembering Ray and Elsa were watching.

But then she stopped remembering, for his arms were around her. She curled up even closer into them, and put her arms around his neck, and her hands up into his hair. And Ray and Elsa Porter didn't matter, for she was being kissed again—and by an expert!

Teen-Agers---Here's a Test to See How Grown-up You Are

Take a test, Teen-Agers:

If your parents have protested that you monopolize the family telephone, have you tried to limit your conversations to a reasonable time?

If you can't always have the family car when you want it, do you accept the fact good-naturedly, instead of sulking and fuming?

Do you show appreciation for all the things your family gives you and does for you, instead of making them feel that you regard yourself as underprivileged?

Do you accept without rebellion the fact that your parents have a right to want to know where you are going and with whom when you start out in the evening?

Do you do all the things for yourself that you are fully capable of doing instead of expecting your mother to be a sort of lady's maid or valet to you?

Do you take pride in having your friends meet your parents, taking the attitude that it is as important for your parents to like your friends as for your friends to think your parents are okay?

Do you do what you are asked to do about the house without acting put out or having to be reminded over and over?

Try to See Parents' View

Do you ever try to see your parents' point of view, instead of expecting them always to see yours?

Do you treat your parents' friends with courteous respect?

Do you give your parents credit for knowing a little more than you do?

Do you try to give your parents some pleasure in your company, instead of acting bored if you have to spend an evening in their company?

Test yourselves, Teen-Agers. It will give you a good idea of how grown-up you really are.

Acne May Cause Inferiority Complex in Teen-Agers

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

"My husband has acne over the upper part of his body on back and chest. What is the cause of this and can acne be cured? Should he take a blood tonic?" So writes Mrs. G. D.

Acne is considered to be a skin disease and largely confined to boys and girls of teen ages though older people, as in the case of Mrs. D's husband, are sometimes afflicted. Now the exact cause of acne is still unknown.

The pimples do contain one or more kinds of germs, but the "ripe" white head or pimple contains a mixture of pus, germs, skin oil, and destroyed tissue cells. The pimples appear most commonly on the face, neck, upper part of the chest and shoulders, and are comparatively rare on other parts of the body.

The treatment of acne is admittedly not entirely satisfactory. Nevertheless many cases can be helped and many can be completely cured. Local treatment of the skin can often be extremely helpful. Just what preparation should be put on, however, should be left to the judgment of the doctor in charge, partly because what helps one person may not help another and may indeed be harmful.

Attention to the general health is equally important. It is almost always true that excessive eating of sweets or starches will make an acne condition worse.

Many of those who have acne notice that the condition is much better in the summer when their skin is exposed to sunlight. By a combination of appropriate local and general measures a person with acne can be helped a great deal in most cases.

Affects Personality

One of the things about acne which should always be mentioned if pimples appear on the face is the effect of the disease on the personality of the youngster. Acne frequently comes when a youngster is in the middle teens and extremely sensitive to social contacts.

I have talked with some adults about this and some of them have told me that the disease gave them a permanent inferiority complex.

It should be realized that acne is generally a temporary disease and will disappear after a while. In the meawhile a youngster should force himself or herself to take part in the usual social events and to go to parties, ignoring the condition as much as possible.

In an adult, such of Mrs. D's husband, the problem is somewhat different. Here the condition must be treated pretty much as a pure skin disease. The aid of a skin specialist should be obtained and his advice followed to the end that the condition will clear up entirely.

Your New

Social Security

Question: How does the new social security law affect employees of nonprofit organizations?

Answer: One type of nonprofit organization is the charitable, religious, educational, scientific, or literary organization, no part of whose earnings go to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual. The employees of these organizations are not automatically brought under social security by the new law, but may be brought under the law if certain conditions are met. Employees of other types of nonprofit organizations, such as veterans' groups, labor organizations, civic and recreational associations and others, are covered by the law if their wages are $50 or more in a calendar quarter.

Question: How may employees of nonprofit charitable, religious, educational, scientific, or literary organizations come under the social security program?

Answer: The employees will come under the social security law only if the employing organization accepts social security coverage and files with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue a certificate to that effect, and if two-thirds or more of the employees desire it. This certificate must be accompanied by a list containing the name, address, and social security number if any) of each employee who wishes to have social security coverage. If at least two-thirds of the employees of the organization agree to the filing of the certificate, social security coverage will be extended to employees of that organization.

Are Closely Linked By A Common Bond

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — (AP) — Signing of the Japanese peace treaty will start a new migration to America.

It is the signal for the mass return of some of our natives, sometimes referred to overseas as "the American colonials." And the long voyage home is going to be a sad disillusionment to many of them.

Who are the American colonials? They are a post-war phenomenon. They are U.S. citizens who, ever since the end of the second World War, have remained in foreign countries and represented the American way — in one way or another.

Some spread culture for the Voice of America. Some scattered dollars for the ECA. Some held clerical or civilian executive posts in our swollen staffs that supervised occupied Germany and Japan. Some represented legitimate businesses. A few were 20th century carpetbaggers, trying to browbeat a fast buck out of a fallen foe.

But one common bond usually linked all American colonials, good or bad. They had life easier there than they'd ever had it here.

A man who had been lucky to afford three beers at a sidestreet standup bar back home found he could loll at ease in a plush club there and afford all the scotch and soda he could consume. A housewife used to doing her own laundry back in Kansas City discovered that in Berlin or Tokyo her budget might cover a gardener, a maid, a cook, a governess and a girl-of-all-work.

Just Like "Windfall'

Nope, they'd never had it so good. The wise ones took the good times as a windfall, did their jobs well, and put by their money for a rainy day. But the lush living also turned a lot of heads. And the American colonial at his worst was more insufferable than the worst type of British colonial, whose bad manners he aped but whose sureness of authority he never quite achieved.

The favorite bleat of this type of American colonial, when he couldn't get the price he wanted on the black market or the ice melted in his highball, was an injured, "Well, who won the war anyway? We've got to keep these people in their place."

But he didn't fool the average German or Japanese. They knew who won the war: The American soldier, not the American colonial.

Now the lush years are about over. With Allied government supervision lifting in both Japan and Germany, the American colonials are finding their privileges and jobs evaporating.

Many, let out of one post, are frantically grabbing for a spot with other American agencies operating around the world. Anything to keep from coming back to the reality here. For a number who have come home have written back to them:

"For heaven's sake, be smart and stay over there on the gravy train as long as you can. The prices here will murder you."

By and large, the American colonials did about as fine a job as could be expected, given the temptations they had. But its a good thing most of them are going to come back home.

The American isn't meant by nature or training to be either a colonial—or a colonial boss.

It is said that domestic fires in England cause twice as much air pollution as industrial smoke.

practically ever since the end of the last war. If it gets worse, as seems likely, it is bound to hurt the mass of the people—as inflation always does.

This country is putting much of its wealth and productive energy in guns to buy peace. Usually you can't have guns and butter both. The theory this time is that our productive capacity has risen so much that we can soon almost do that. Maybe not as much butter as we'd like—but more butter than any other nation ever did before under the same circumstances.

That is our only real hedge against inflation: The ability of our industrial machine to turn out the guns we need and the comfort gadgets we like—at the same time. And it'll take some doing.

Meanwhile it's nice to keep a little nest egg in the bank.

Pullets Lay More

COLUMBUS, Ohio—(AP)—Pullets lay more eggs than hens, according to Mahlon Sweet, extension poultry specialist at Ohio State university.

Sweet says that during one experiment that covered 11 years, Barred Rock hens averaged 122.3 eggs per year while pullets in the same breed averaged 172.5 eggs per year. In the same test, White Leghorn hens averaged 137.5 eggs. White Leghorn pullets, Sweet says, averaged 172 eggs per year.

Advice Given On Ways to Beat Inflation

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 — (AP) — The economists are predicting inflation again.

They say that as more factories turn to war production the supply of many civilian goods will dwindle. The prices of these will naturally rise, and bingo—inflation!

The financial pundits are already giving advice on how to beat inflation. Lately, I've been reading this advice in preference to the comics page. It's funnier.

One of their favorite topics is what to put your money in as "a hedge against inflation." One suggestion is to buy diamonds and hold them.

So you stroll into Tiffany's and tell the clerk: "I want that pretty bauble, and that one, and that other one over there. Just for a hedge against inflation, you know. Charge 'em."

Diamonds? The average man is in a better position to buy ping-pong balls. You can at least go home and play a game with them, while inflation rages outside the window.

Real estate is another favorite "hedge" for the experts. But the ordinary guy already is up to his pocketbook paying off the mortgage on his house. He couldn't buy the Empire State Building even with a certificate of character from the RFC.

"The worst thing about this inflation talk is the weapon it is giving wives," complained one husband. "My wife came up to me the other night and said, 'Well, I guess I'd better buy a fur coat quick — they say inflation is coming.'

"I told her we'd better keep the money to pay the rent. Then we could both stay warm this winter. But she bought the fur coat anyway."

There are a number of people, not including wives, who feel the best way to whip inflation is to buy a three-car garage, even though they don't need one, on the grounds they will soon be in short supply.

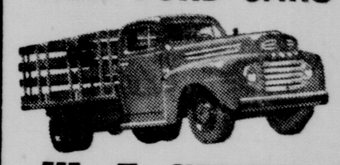

The trouble is that the average man doesn't need a hedge against inflation. He needs a cyclone cellar—and some common sense.

There is no way possible he can "beat inflation" any more than King Canute could turn back the tide. All he can do is to tighten his belt, spend his money as wisely as he can—and hope for better times.

America — and the rest of the world have been in an inflation

Woman Scorned Turns On Bookie

NEW YORK—(AP)—A Bronx housewife gave the police an assist in their drive against gamblers by having an alleged bookmaker arrested. Her complaint was that he failed to pay off after she had parlayed $100 into $1,885 betting on horse races.

The woman, a mother of two children, told the court she bet an average of $40 a day on the races without drawing on her bank account or her husband's $85 weekly pay.

Service On Request

GRAND ISLAND, Neb.—(AP)—Charles Benner of Central City, Neb., got his train information with a bang.

Benner stopped his car on a crossing here to ask the flagman when train No. 11 would be in. He had hardly asked the question when train No. 11 smacked into his car.

Police said the train had overshot its stop mark and was backing toward the station. The car was not badly damaged.

Motorists' Delight

Eight states tour their highways with magnetic sweepers to keep down the flat-tire toll: Arkansas, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and Oklahoma. The sweepers are trucks equipped with huge electromagnets, and an average of six pounds of tire-damaging metal per mile per year is collected.

WD TRACTOR
with NEW 3-bottom mounted plow

Look at the NEW Allis-Chalmers three-bottom mounted plow on the WD Tractor. Step up to three-plow farming with this new power champion.

Here are three special ways it does more work and spares your muscles:

Hydraulic Traction Booster — automatically increases weight on drive wheels as the load increases. Makes possible more actual drawbar pull.

Two-Clutch Power Control — auxiliary hand clutch halts forward travel without interrupting power flow to power take-off.

Power Shift Wheel Spacing — instantly adjusts rear wheel tread with engine power.

Stop in soon and see the WD with its new three-bottom mounted plow.

THAT'S WHAT I CALL REAL SERVICE

And You ALWAYS Get It When You Use McCormick Equipment

One day, right in the middle of harvest, a customer hurried in and asked for a replacement part for his 10-year-old combine. I went to the parts bin, and as I came back and plunked the part down on the counter, he grinned and said:

"That's what I like about using McCormick equipment. When I do need a part, you always have it or can get it right quick."

He started to walk out, and I said, "How about letting our service man put that part on for you? Your machine might need a little adjustment here and there, and he can do that at the same time."

He thought it over for a minute, and laid the part back on the counter. "Go ahead," he grinned. "I've got a couple of other things to take care of here in town anyway. The combine is standing in the field south of the house."

He turned to go, and I mentioned, "If you're not at home by the time he puts on the part, I'll have him try the combine and look it over thoroughly and give you a report. Maybe we can get together and arrange to fix it ahead of time for next season and save you time and trouble."

"Go ahead," he agreed again. "That's what I call real service!"

"Just a part of our regular IH 5-Star Service," I said.

Racketeers Sell Horsemeat For "Fillet Mignon"

NEW YORK—(AP)—The sale of about six tons of horsemeat in Bronx and Harlem restaurants and butcher shops as fillet mignon and round steak was discovered with the arrest of two men.

One prisoner, described a member of a ring operating in New York, Buffalo, Jersey City and Baltimore, was caught with two hindquarters of horsemeat in the trunk of his sedan. He was trying to sell the 300 pounds to a butcher who called the police. The other was accused of operating for six months.

The horsemeat was bought out of the state for 25 cents a pound and sold in New York for 50 cents a pound wholesale. The wholesale price for genuine filet mignon and round steak has been around 90 cents a pound.

Opium For "Medicinal Purposes"

SINGAPORE—(AP)—A Chinese seaman who insisted he had leg trouble and thus had to carry a pound of raw opium tied around his knee was sentenced to four months in jail on a smuggling charge.

Service On Demand

NEW YORK—(AP)—Lacking a prescription for morphine tables, a drugstore patron here used a revolver instead. At gunpoint, he forced the proprietor, Jacob Blatt, to give him a whole bottle full of the pills.

Italian Hotels Ready For Tourists

ROME—(AP)—Italy's hotels now boast 400,000 beds compared with 170,000 available to tourists and travelers in 1945. The National Hotel Association reported the present total represented an increase of 50,000 beds since 1940.
